If Victory Carried a Price Tag

—You'd Pay Without a Whimper; Well, Here's Chance!

SUPPOSE you were downtown on the afternoon of Monday, Dec. 7, and saw in a store window three anti-tank shells and a dozen bandages, with a price tag of $18.75.

Would you buy them, if you could be assured of immediate delivery to Richland county boys on the world's fighting fronts?

Do you know how much, in the way of equipment, supplies and material just one $18.75 bond will buy?

Do you know how much $100,000 in war bonds will buy?

The reason for these questions, of course, is that Monday, Dec. 7, is the first anniversary of Pearl Harbor. No one needs to ask you if you remember Pearl Harbor.

LET'S LET THE BOYS KNOW

On Pearl Harbor day, 1942, Mansfielders are being asked to buy $100,000 in war bonds, as a demonstration in cold, hard cash to the county's men in the service that the home front is "operating according to plan" to borrow a military phrase.

There are now in the country's armed forces—army, navy, marines and coast guard—some 4,300 Richland county men.

It shouldn't take a great deal of imagination to feel that when you buy a bond on Pearl Harbor day, you're buying the tools those Richland county boys need, if they're going to do their job, without needless loss of life.

No one is idealistic enough to think there won't be any loss of life—we've already had some.

But we can keep that casualty list at a minimum by buying bonds. And certainly no one needs any more incentive to buy war bonds than the feeling that those purchases will help prevent another Pearl Harbor.

You know, of course, that all four Monsfield banks will close their doors at 12 noon on Monday, Dec. 7, re-opening after an air raid alert staged by the Civil Air Patrol at 12:25 p. m., for the sale of war bonds exclusively. Bonds will also be on sale at the Mechanics Building and Loan company, the Ohio and Madison theaters, the postoffice and the Ohio Fuel Gas company.

Just as the nation went into action to fight the Axis after Pearl Harbor a year ago, the committee in charge of the anniversary bond-selling event, hopes all Mansfield will go into action and buy bonds.

WHAT YOUR MONEY BUYS

Let us take a look at what your bonds will buy. Do you know some of the Richland county boys in the navy? Well, for $185 the navy can buy a life raft that will hold 10 persons. That raft might mean the difference between life and death, then, for 10 Richland county sailors. Ten $25 bonds would cost you $187.50.

Know someone in the air corps? Four $50 bonds will buy a parachute for him. A $25 bond will buy a warm winter flying jacket.

Just one $25 war bond will buy three steel helmets for the infantry—"queen of battle."

There are countless other examples of what your bond will buy. For $18.75, the cost of a $25 bond, you can give the army 375 yards of barbed wire for the Japs and Germans to get tangled up in; for 10 of them you can give the marines a sub-machine gun—and can those boys get results with those things? And for an investment of $250 you can provide the marines with 1,000 rounds of .50-caliber anti-aircraft ammunition. That ought to bag at least one Zero, or a Messerschmidt.

Get the idea?

SIGN YOUR CARD

At the first test mobilization of the Mansfield civilian defense organization Sunday night, the day before Pearl Harbor Day, block wardens will deliver "Remember Pearl Harbor — Buy Bonds" pledges to every home in Mansfield. When you receive that pledge from the warden, think of what your bond purchase will buy for the armed forces.

Then Monday afternoon, go to one of the designated places of purchase — and remember the figures you've just read here.

Mansfield and Richland county residents have already purchased, since Pearl Harbor was attacked, $4,146,000 in war bonds. In only two months of 12 since that day has the county fallen short of its war bond quota.

The goal for Pearl Harbor day is $100,000. That ought to be just a drop in the bucket.

Germans Move on French Air Base Near Toulon

ARREST ALL OFFICERS OF SUNKEN FLEET

Report Says Every Official at Vichy Dismissed Except Petain.

British Scour Mediterranean To Aid Them; Madrid Tells Of 6-Hour Toulon Battle.

(By United Press)

LONDON — Germany, tightening its grip on French Mediterranean defense areas, has ordered the complete evacuation of the great air base at Istres, near Toulon, the German-controlled Paris radio said today.

Possession of the base would give the Germans a new aerial defense stronghold which they might develop to resist any Allied attack on Corsica or Sardinia and would enable their planes to operate over a wide area of the Mediterranean between Spain and Italy.

The British radio, heard by CBS in New York, reported that at Toulon the Germans had arrested Admiral Jean De Laborde, fleet commander, and all naval offices.

(Laborde was quoted as having warned the Germans when they demanded access to his ships: "I shall open fire on anyone who tries to board our naval units." Then, it was said, he reported to Marshal Henri Philippe Petain at 10 a. m.: "The entire fleet at Toulou has ceased to exist.")

The newspaper Evening News reported that all Vichy government officials had been dismissed except Marshal Petain.

The usually well-informed press association reported that Gen. Charles De Gaulle, fighting French leader, would go to the United States soon for conversations expected to smooth out much of the French political difficulties in North Africa.

Gas Stations Gear Up for Buying Rush

No Sale Suspension Till Rationing Starts, Says OPA Announcement.

Mansfield filling stations generally will limit their Sunday and Monday service to filling gasoline tanks in preparation for the rationing era beginning Tuesday, devoting a minimum of time to lubrication, it was disclosed today.

Rumors that stations would suspend the sale of gasoline on one or both of the remaining "free-for-all" days were discounted by county rationing board members who said no instructions had been received demanding such a course nor had any advices to such effect came from station operators. The Washington OPA announced today that no freeze of gasoline is anticipated.

Meanwhile, registration of the R-S name group for supplemental gas rations was being carried on from 12 noon to 5 p. m. today at John Simpson Junior high school gymnasium with the scheduled completion of registration set for Monday from 1 to 5 and 6 to 9 p. m.

An assembly of reports from various industrial and commercial centers suggests there will be a dearth of motor traffic Tuesday and thereafter due to the rationing which begins Monday at midnight.

But for those who are confronted with a minimum of motoring there is some solace in the fact that you can perk up your old coffee pot a bit Sunday when the week's freeze on retail coffee supplies melts into a new rationing of this beverage.

Domestic coffee users who are without sugar ration books will have until Dec. 15 to register, as coupons 29 and 20 will be taken by the retailers for coffee sales, Nelson Neff, chief clerk of the Richland county rationing board announced today.

Dealers are urged to call at the ration board office to obtain gummed sheets on which to place the coffee coupons, keeping these separate from the sugar sheet.

Where Valiant Frenchmen Scuttled Their Fleet

Here is the great naval harbor of Toulon, where, according to Vichy reports, the French fleet was scuttled by its officers and men. The entire harbor was reported to be "a scene of utter desolation with all the magnificent ships of the French navy lying on their sides with dense clouds of smoke rising from them."

Airtroops and Armored Forces Join Big Push

Nazis Admit Fierce Fighting Southwest Of Tunisian Capital as Allies Use Heavy Blanket of Planes To Protect Quick Advance.

(By International News Service)

LONDON—The all-out Allied assault to drive the Axis from Tunisia was reported underway today and one advanced column of British, American and French troops was said to have struck to within only a few miles of Tunis, the capital.

(Editor's Note: A Nazi broadcast by the Paris radio reported "violent fighting" in the Medjez-El-Bab region where British forces "succeeded in infiltrating into the Axis lines." Violent Allied attacks also were reported on the Bizerte-Tunis front following receipt of reinforcements. Medjez-El-Bab is 35 miles southwest of Tunis.

The forces marching on Tunis may already be investing the city, the London Evening Star said.

The British First army, supported by American armored forces and soldiers from French garrisons, moved out of their defense positions in western Tunisia to launch dual offensives against German and Italian forces guarding Tunis and the naval base of Bizerte, the Algiers radio said.

(Allied parachute troops made a sudden, fierce assault on German and Italian positions near Mator, between Tunis and Bizerte, and inflicted a fair number of casualties, taking 35 prisoners, a special correspondent of the Reuter news agency with the British First army reported today.)

Allied infantrymen, the broadcast said, were moving up rapidly behind a large number of tank units protected by a powerful armada of American and British planes.

The advanced elements of one of the two striking forces was said to have smashed its way forward to a point only a few miles from Tunis in a continuous drive from Tabourba, 15 miles west of the capital.

An official announcement from Allied headquarters in North Africa revealed that Allied forces smashing at the Axis defense perimeter before Bizerte and Tunis had stepped up the tempo of their assault.

The main column of the British First army under command of Lieut. Gen. Kenneth A. N. Anderson, the headquarters announcement said, is converging on both Axis-held cities and is advancing "rapidly in the face of continuing German air opposition."

The Axis air forces have unleashed especially concentrated strafing attacks against the forward-moving Allied ground

TURNING GUNS ON HENDERSON

Rebellious Congressmen Give Up Gasoline Fight, Whet Ax For OPA Chief.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Abandoning efforts to block nationwide gasoline rationing, a growing group of congressmen launched a new fight today against Price Administrator Leon Henderson.

Their announced aim is to force his removal from the federal service through the medium of appropriations.

The futility of carrying on the fight against rationing ordered for Dec. 1 was conceded by Representative Boren (D-Okla), who said any legislation to stop it would draw a certain veto and thus be a waste of time.

But Boren and others who had joined him in the fight rallied around a new battle cry sounded yesterday in the house by the belligerent Oklahoman:

"Trillions for defense, but fifteen cents for Leon Henderson is fifteen cents too much."

They referred to appropriation bills, to be considered early in the new congress, through which the office of price administration obtains its operating funds.

Recalling the difficulty administration leaders encountered in obtaining funds for OPA this year, Boren said there were good prospects no funds would be voted for OPA next year unless Henderson were ousted.

High-ranking members of the house appropriations committee,

SETS PRICE ON SILK HOSIERY

OPA Regulates Charges for Hose If You Can Get 'Em.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—The Office of Price Administration today established dollars-and-cents ceiling prices for women's silk hose to protect both consumers and distributors from high prices.

The order, effective Dec. 3, sets retail prices from 69 cents per pair for the coarsest first quality circular knit silk hosiery to $1.65 for those of finest quality full-fashioned.

Prices of "irregulars" will range from 60 cents to $1.50; "seconds" from 50 cents to $1.25, and "thirds" from 35 to 85 cents.

The most commonly worn styles of first quality three and four thread 42 and 48 gauge full-fashioned, silk leg stockings will have a top retail price of from $1 to $1.25 a pair.

COUNTY UNFURLS SALVAGE 'E' FLAG

State Presents Award For 12,459,932 Pounds Gathered During Campaign.

Richland county's new salvage flag—the second to be awarded by the War Production Board within the state—floated below the stars and stripes on the courthouse flag staff today indicative of the "high mark made by Mansfield and the county in Ohio's scrap drive during the months of September and October when 12,459,932 pounds of old metal were salvaged.

The pennant awarded to the county for excellence was presented by Robert O. Weible, executive secretary of the Ohio general salvage division, at public ceremonies Friday afternoon. Slated to take place on the front steps the presentation was transferred to the second floor corridor due to inclement weather.

Carl Stough, under whose chairmanship Richland county collected 154 pounds of scrap per capita in the two months' drive, acknowledged the pennant by praising individuals and organizations responsible for making the drive a success.

Stough warned that "the drive for scrap must go on and someone will have to keep gathering it." He pointed out that in addition to the total number of pounds reported at the time figures on the drive were due about 4,000,000 pounds had been collected.

In presenting the flag "for achievements to date," Weible pointed out that the next emphasis in the scrap program would be placed on collecting cast-off

RECAPTURE: Advancing Reds Take Kletskaya, Pocket Nazis

(By International News Service)

MOSCOW—A northern wing of Red army forces smashing at the Nazis in the multi-pronged offensive in the Stalingrad region today recaptured the city of Kletskaya on the west bank of the Don river 75 miles northwest of Stalingrad.

The victorious Russian troops reported they found the city in ruins. All houses were destroyed and only seven inhabitants were found, the remainder of the residents having been carried off by the Germans.

The center of Kletskaya, advices from the front said, had been turned into a vast cemetery for German dead.

Widespread gains were made by charging Soviet forces in the whole area of the Don bend northwest and south of Stalingrad.

It is believed the Russians joined forces along the Don south of Kalach, imprisoning a large Axis army in the Stalingrad pocket. The Germans were faced with the alternative of fighting their way inward or attempting to fight their way out.

It was pointed out that Adolf Hitler alone gave the order to withdraw, but only after the greatest reluctance.

If the Axis forces are imprisoned it means that Marshal Semyon Timoshenko has achieved a brilliant maneuver, encircling possibly 250,000 men. It is thought the Nazis may try to free their companions by a counter attack from forces at Rostov.

A company of German infantry was wiped out in the course of a Soviet night attack on one sector

Injuries Bring Mme. Chiang Back To United States

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Madame Chiang Kai-Shek, famed first lady of China's fighting millions, is back today in America—the land of her school days.

This time it was the after-effects of an accident on one of her daring trips to the Sino-Japanese battlefronts that brought the wife of China's generalissimo to the United States. When or how she arrived was not disclosed.

But there was immediate speculation that her trip might also spell new anti-Japanese strategy as well as cement more firmly the fighting efforts of the two allied nations.

A White House announcement said yesterday the woman who helped weld China's warring factors into a mighty military unit was here for treatment of injuries sustained five years ago when a tire blew out on the automobile in which she was riding—under heavy Japanese fire — while visiting the front.

After treatments are concluded, she will visit President and Mrs. Roosevelt, the announcement said.

The action was related today by the communications officer on this "unidentified ship" which participated in the mighty blow which sank one Jap battleship or heavy cruiser, three heavy cruisers and at least two Jap destroyers in addition to several ships damaged.

Children Found Living With Goats and Dogs.

FREMONT — (U.P.) — Sandusky county authorities today arranged for the care of three children, two girls and a boy from 10 to 14 years in ages, who were found sharing a house with an odd assortment of animals.

Found in the home with the children were four goats, several dogs and cats, a cow and chickens. Authorities said both parents worked in an Akron war plant and had left the children alone during the past two weeks.

EARTH OPENS

Houses Crack, Streets Buckle As Mine Collapses.

PITTSTON, Pa. — (AP) — The earth split open, houses cracked, pavements buckled and scores of families were evacuated in a disastrous mine subsidence here last night and early today, the worst in eastern Pennsylvania's hard coal fields in several years.

The subsidence — a gradual settling of surface earth over a mine—spread ruin through a residential section covering a half square mile.

Yawning cracks appeared in streets and lawns, the largest five feet wide, 150 feet long and so deep that the bottom was not visible. Two hundred homes were twisted, cracked or sprung from their foundations. Sidewalks were torn up and gas and water mains snapped in several places. Water cascaded through the streets and flooded cellars.

FACE: Japs Spur Fighting to Balk Victorious Dec. 7 for U. S.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Fierce Japanese counter-blows against American and United Nations Pacific outposts within the next week in an attempt to prevent the U. S. from ending the first year of war on a note of victory were considered probable today by navy men.

This trend was indicated in the fact that the Nipponese are battling fiercely on New Guinea and by the renewal of enemy air raids against Guadalcanal following a two-week lull.

Official circles were optimistic, however, about American chances to hold the southern Solomons beyond Dec. 7, the first anniversary of the Nipponese attack upon Pearl Harbor.

Also, military and navy men felt certain that American and United Nations forces would continue their drive to crush enemy forces now clinging to a narrow beachhead on northern New Guinea.

There was no confirmation in Washington of reports from the Pacific that the Nipponese have been concentrating powerful fleet units north of the Solomons for another drive against Guadalcanal and possibly New Guinea.

However, Secretary of the Navy Knox and other officials have warned repeatedly that "we must assume" that the Japs will return to the southern Solomons for another attempt to oust the Americans.

Whatever the Japanese plans, American forces have reinforced their positions and extended their

Now that football officials are no longer needed, the Ohio High School Athlete, official organ of the Ohio High School Athletic association, comes out with a list of new officials who passed their gridiron examinations this fall.

High school coaches who were forced in the past season to scurry around at the last minute seeking officials to replace men who had cancelled because of entering the service, or because they were tied up with war work or kept in bed by flu, may be a bit irked today to learn that the guy next door, or just down the road, had just been approved as an Ohio official. The new list doesn't do much good now.

However, Mansfield fans will be interested in learning that among the new officials given permission to toot their whistles with the official blessing of the Ohio association are Al Fendrick, coach of Madison high school, Ken Hartman, former Mansfield high gridder, and George McIntire, coach of Union high school.

Also in the list is Lima Johnny Cindric, home run champion of the Ohio State baseball league in 1940 who was nosed out for the same honor in 1941 by Mansfield's Eddie the Mighty Man Mutryn.

If anything makes my neck hair bristle
It's the official's raucous whistle.
And he penetrates my hide,
With "Foul on you. Five yards. Offside."

Pity Larry Swackhamer, new basketball coach at Shelby. He seems to be having the same difficulty in material that Tommy Bender faced during the football season:

Too little, and too few.

Only 20 boys answered his call to cage practice, and they averaged only five feet, six inches. He shouldn't have much difficulty cutting that squad down to season limits.

Smart money hopes to bring up material for Whippet squads through intramural play.

The season is falling briskly as predicted. Long written, and I say so. Rabbit saying, "Brother, it's time I was making tracks."

Had been heaping field and highway.

Fans Boo Debut Of Jimmy Bivins

NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy Bivins, Cleveland's highly-touted Negro pugilistic prospect, took on Melio Bettina of Utica, N. Y., in a scheduled ten-round bout at Madison Square Garden last night. He won the decision, but only after a battle that left the fans in the New York ...

The 12,954 fans who had been stuffed like Thanksgiving turkeys with tales of Bivins' punching prowess, bellowed constantly for action and booed both fighters thunderously as they left the ring.

Bivins weighed 174 pounds to Bettina's 183. Bettina was pudgy and his appearance led the fans to predict a knockout for the Italian-born Patterson, N. J. boy. But the fans' guesses ended there. Bivins, who had been hailed by young Tony Mauriello a few weeks ago as "the best fighter I ever saw," knew that Bettina was merely serving as a stepping stone for the 22-year-old negro.

Both pugilists appeared to be so affected by the tremendous ... something to the point all the action in the bout that Bettina built was provided by the outraged fans who had paid $25,453 to sit in on the public ...

Bowl Bids Hinge on Big Games

Georgie, Georgia Tech Vie For Pasadena Trip.

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

NEW YORK—(AP)—Today's program virtually completes football's first campaign of the present war and no matter how good or how bad the team's record, nowhere will sun-down be more eagerly awaited them at Athens, Boston, Seattle and Nashville.

Those cities are sites of games involving teams with bowl ambitions and today's outcomes may determine which bids—if any—are received.

Generally, however, there also will be concern regarding games at Annapolis, where Army and Navy decide the service championship before 12,000; at Ann Arbor, Mich., where Iowa and Michigan decide which is to be the third team in the Big Ten; and at Los Angeles where 80,000 will sit in a game between Notre Dame and Southern California which decides nothing.

The Athens game will draw most of the bowl attention because both participants, all-winning Georgia Tech and once-beaten Georgia, are claimants for past-season gold. Should the Yellow-jackets successfully withstand Georgia's wrath, it is expected Tech will head west for the Rose Bowl.

If Georgia wins, however, the Bulldogs might get the chance to display Frankie Sinkwich to the Californians with Tech going to either the Cotton Bowl as the foe for Texas or to New Orleans where Boston college is expected to be the party of the second part in the Sugar Bowl.

The Eagles must dispose of a traditionally fiery opponent in Holy Cross before checking the time-tables to the South. Although the Bostonians are 4 to 1 favorites it will be the first time this season that one of Coach Denny Myers' regulars won't be able to start, Center Fred Naumetz being the victim of a bronchial attack.

Seattle's offering is the Washington State-Washington contest in which a triumph for the Cougars would clinch at least a share of the Pacific Coast conference title and a possible western Rose Bowl nomination.

Nashville is host to the Vanderbilt-Tennessee affair and the Vols, after a sputtering start, have attracted enough attention in their late season frays to gain bowl stature.

Three of the four pre-flight teams, recently declared out of the bowl limelight by official Washington, are active today with the Iowa Seahawks at Ohio State; North Carolina Cloudbusters at Fordham in a homecoming for Lieut. Comdr. James Crowley, and Alabama battling the Georgia Flyers.

Rice opposes Baylor and Southern Methodist takes on Texas Christian in strictly Southwestern conference affairs and Kansas State closes the Big Six season by visiting Nebraska.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Even though the armed forces move into the colleges to an even greater extent than they already have—and from all we hear, there must be something cooking along that line—it doesn't necessarily mean the end of football for the duration. . . . Big-time football will have tough sledding, anyway, but after soaking up some of the enthusiasm for the game shown by officials at the navy pre-flight schools, we're convinced that football will be played somehow as long as the navy is training theirs.

2Pvt. Mel Wissman, Fort Sheridan (Ill.) Tower: "Golf readies civilians for army training, says John B. Kelly, physical fitness director. We agree. We even wish the army would issue niblicks instead of entrenching tools. Then we could drop a golf ball and dig a fox hole in record time."

George (Old Man Yale) Trevor of the New York Sun tells this one on an official who worked in last week's Harvard-Yale game. Seems the whistle-tooters two sons were in the stands and when the boys blew to nullify Don Richards' 64-yard touchdown run, the nine-year-old asked: "Which of those dam'd officials robbed Harvard of that touchdown?" . . . "I think it was daddy," their mother whispered . . . "They were plenty peeved," the official explained, "they shrilled in unison. 'We hate daddy!'"

Buckeyes Close Season With Big Iowa Seahawks Today

By JOHN COLBURN

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Ohio State, with the Western conference football championship already tucked away, ends its season today by tackling the Iowa Seahawks, one of the nation's top-flight service teams.

About 40,000 fans were expected to see how a good, speedy college eleven would stack up against the Seahawks' galaxy of seasoned college and professional football stars. The Seahawks have beaten one service team and six college squads and have lost only to Notre Dame. Ohio has won eight of its nine games.

Lt. Col. Bernie Bierman, former Minnesota coach and now head of the football team at the Iowa Navy Pre-Flight school, said upon his arrival here more than 90 minutes late last night, "Ohio has a good team and it should be a real game."

Ohio Coach Paul Brown, pointing out that the Seahawks were "big and powerful," said, "we'll give 'em a battle and they'll have to lick us to win."

Colonel Bierman was seeking not only to knock off the newly crowned conference champions, but to improve his gridiron record against the Bucks. While at Minnesota, his teams split even in two engagements with Ohio.

In the Seahawk lineup were three ex-Ohio Staters — Halfbacks Dick Fisher of Columbiana and James Langhurst of Willard, and Tackle Charles Ream of Navarre.

Brown called on the same team that faced Michigan to start against the Seahawks, with Quarterback-Captain George Lynn, Halfbacks Paul Sarringhaus and Les Horvath, and Fullback Gene Fekete slated for the ball handling chores.

After six days of the deer hunting season for archers in Westchester county, N. Some 200 archers had not yet managed to hit a single deer.

It's hard to believe that Ohio, with its open fields and comparatively small amount of forested areas, produced furs valued at more than two millions of dollars in the trapping seasons last fall and winter. A total of 1,157,647 animals were trapped, and the furs sold to dealers for $1,973,399. Added to furs that were sold outside Ohio, of which there is no record, the grand total is $2,000,000.

STOCK MARKET TAKES SLIGHT DOWNWARD DIP

Loans to Offside In Early Dealings; Net Earnings of Issues Decline.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The stock market, on the whole, leaned slightly to the offside in today's early proceedings.

Down at a quiet opening were N. Y. Central, General Electric, Bethlehem, Allied Chemical, Phelps Dodge, U. S. Steel and Yellow Truck. Advances were posted for Sears Roebuck, United Air Lines and Anaconda.

Boardrooms noted the stock exchange compilation disclosing net earnings of 390 corporations with shares listed on the New York mart amounted to $1,521,274,000 in the first nine months of the present year, a decline of 16.3 per cent from the same 1941 period.

Despite the drop, the report added, "a sturdiness of earning power is indicated."

CANCELS OUT

Admiral Says North Africa Move Won't Aid Shipping.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The United Nations' occupation of French North Africa will not ease America's shipping problems, Rear Admiral Howard L. Vickery declared today.

The maritime commission's vice chairman told a press conference that while transportation lines would be shortened by avoiding the long trip around Africa, "we've taken on so much more by putting such a large force in North Africa that actually the situation is unchanged. The one cancels out the other."

DIES ON ROAD

lines on Guadalcanal, and are believed to be in excellent shape to repel another enemy thrust.

Since the American naval-air victory off Guadalcanal Nov. 13-15, U. S. forces have maintained such a rigid patrol of the area that the Japanese have been unable to land reinforcements to aid their isolated troops on the island.

Should the Japs risk their remaining fleet strength for another large-scale battle in the South Pacific area, the outcome could definitely decide the balance of naval power there for the duration of the war.

Allies Repulse Jap Counter-Attacks

UNITED NATIONS HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA—(INS)—Fierce Japanese counter-attack against Allied forces on New Guinea have been repulsed with heavy losses and Australian and American jungle fighters are slowly closing in on the enemy coastal base at Buna, an official communique reported today.

Allied columns admittedly were meeting effective resistance from enemy troops who were strongly entrenched on a coastal strip east of Gona and extending beyond Buna. The enemy was reported to be holding an area of approximately 40 square miles—14 to 15 miles along the coast and running inland three to four miles.

American and Australian airmen maintained constant raids on the enemy-held territory in low-altitude attacks as the Allied ground forces moved ahead yard by yard against clevely hidden Japanese machine-gun nests, concrete firing points and barbed-wire entanglements.

Get That Yuletide Spirit With Holiday Spirits From Weaver's

Home Supply Center Stocks Varied Line of Fine Wines, 36 Brands of Beer.

Old wine to drink, old wood to burn, old books to read, old friends to converse with . . . it's American-way habits like these that we deem worth fighting for.

As the season approaches when we'll be thinking more and more of associations with friends . . . when interest is centered in home and hospitality, our attention turns to the arresting problem of fusing food and drink in happy combination.

Certain customs and conventions have grown up about serving wine, just as conventions have evolved about food. Food conventions you can recite by the dozen. For instance, you probably had ham with your eggs this morning and cranberry sauce with your Thanksgiving turkey.

And although personal taste, convention or not, should be your first consideration, you may also want to try the wine and food combinations that have proved lastingly popular. They're easy to learn because the only conventions that are at all important, are based on sound common sense.

Sherman Weaver of Weaver's Home Supply, 59 South Diamond street, is an authority on wine as an accompaniment to your favorite fowl or meat for Holiday meals. Beside the proper table wine, he will suggest an aperitif or cocktail wine and a sweet wine for dessert and between meals. You may also want to discuss with him the care, coddling and traditional temperatures for serving fine wines.

Though your wine "cellar" is a pantry shelf, plan to have a pleasing variety. At Weaver's Home Supply you will find a complete stock of domestic wines as well as Portuguese, Italian and French wines and Vermouth. A few cases of that great French appetizer, French Dubonnet, are still left, Weaver says, but when these are gone, he warns, there will be no further source of supply.

Homemakers will be interested in talking with Mr. Weaver about the use of wines in cooking. According to Weaver, wine is easy to use. It is wonderfully adaptable. There is hardly a dish from soup to dessert but can be enriched and improved by the addition of wine, brandy or rum, Weaver states.

Continuing, he says, "You don't need a special, exotic recipe any more than you need an exotic recipe for using lemon juice or cinnamon or a pinch of sage. Wine belongs in American cooking. At our everyday tables appear a greater variety of foods than are commonly used anywhere else in the world. Why should we omit one of the greatest blessings of the civilized cuisine?"

If you're in the trial and error stage you may buy a clever package holding an assortment of small flasks of wines at Weaver's. These would also make acceptable Christmas gifts or bridge prizes.

In fact much of your Christmas shopping could profitably be done at Weaver's, for they have an interesting variety of gift packages for beer as well as champagne budgets.

In addition to the wide stock of wines carried at Weaver's Home Supply, 36 brands of beer are stocked and you may purchase every delicacy for a "Dutch" lunch.

Seven years a brewmaster and 33 years an employe of the Renner-Weber Brewing company here, Mr. Weaver is a real connoisseur of malt beverages. As an economy measure, he suggests that his customers buy their beer by the case and spend the saving for defense bonds.

Sherman Weaver, proprietor, is shown above with Bob Graham, an employe, waiting to serve you at Weaver's Home Supply, 59 South Diamond street.

New Fuel Ruling Interpreted by Gas Company

Considerable modification in its interpretations of recent limitations to War Production Board order L-31 affecting the connection to gas lines of certain types of gas-fired heating equipment was announced today by W. C. Mead, district manager of the Ohio Fuel Gas company.

In making the announcement, Mr. Mead said, "After discussions with the War Production Board office, we are glad to announce considerable modifications in our initial interpretations of the new limitations so that many residential users of gas heating equipment will be less inconvenienced through moving or replacing their equipment than was first supposed."

It was further pointed out that now customers who are changing address may connect gas-fired space heating equipment in their new address providing equipment of like kind and size was in use by the former occupant.

Following are the complete new interpretations of limitations affecting the connection of gas-fired heating equipment to the lines of residential premises on and after November 30, 1942:

The new limitations do not affect the use of gas-fired equipment already connected to the lines as long as it remains installed at the same address.

No additional gas-fired space heating equipment — including radiant heaters, conversion burners, etc.— may be connected to the lines, but replacement equipment of like kind and size may be installed at the same premises. (Gas furnace may not replace gas-fired boiler, radiant heaters may not replace circulating gas heater, etc., even though the capacity is not increased.)

No gas-fired space heating equipment may be connected at a new address unless equipment of like kind and size was in use by former occupant.

No heating equipment not using gas on the date effective may be converted to the use of gas as a fuel.

Owners of rental property who furnish gas-fired space heaters for the property may permit new tenants to use the equipment as part of the rented property. If the rental property is not so equipped by the owner, but previous tenant had installed and used such equipment, a new tenant would be permitted installation and use of similar equipment.

Limitation order L-31 places additional limitations on non-residential equipment of all types. Further information may be secured at the Gas company office by this class of consumers, Mr. Mead stated.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The stock market, on the whole, leaned slightly to the offside in today's early proceedings.

Down at a quiet opening were N. Y. Central, General Electric, Bethlehem, Allied Chemical, Phelps Dodge, U. S. Steel and Yellow Truck. Advances were posted for Sears Roebuck, United Air Lines and Anaconda.

Boardrooms noted the stock exchange compilation disclosing net earnings of 390 corporations with shares listed on the New York mart amounted to $1,521,274,000 in the first nine months of the present year, a decline of 16.3 per cent from the same 1941 period.

Despite the drop, the report added, "a sturdiness of earning power is indicated."

Admiral Says North Africa Move Won't Aid Shipping.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The United Nations' occupation of French North Africa will not ease America's shipping problems, Rear Admiral Howard L. Vickery declared today.

The maritime commission's vice chairman told a press conference that while transportation lines would be shortened by avoiding the long trip around Africa, "we've taken on so much more by putting such a large force in North Africa that actually the situation is unchanged. The one cancels out the other."

lines on Guadalcanal, and are believed to be in excellent shape to repel another enemy thrust.

Since the American naval-air victory off Guadalcanal Nov. 13-15, U. S. forces have maintained such a rigid patrol of the area that the Japanese have been unable to land reinforcements to aid their isolated troops on the island.

Should the Japs risk their remaining fleet strength for another large-scale battle in the South Pacific area, the outcome could definitely decide the balance of naval power there for the duration of the war.

Allies Repulse Jap Counter-Attacks

UNITED NATIONS HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA—(INS)—Fierce Japanese counter-attack against Allied forces on New Guinea have been repulsed with heavy losses and Australian and American jungle fighters are slowly closing in on the enemy coastal base at Buna, an official communique reported today.

Allied columns admittedly were meeting effective resistance from enemy troops who were strongly entrenched on a coastal strip east of Gona and extending beyond Buna. The enemy was reported to be holding an area of approximately 40 square miles—14 to 15 miles along the coast and running inland three to four miles.

American and Australian airmen maintained constant raids on the enemy-held territory in low-altitude attacks as the Allied ground forces moved ahead yard by yard against clevely hidden Japanese machine-gun nests, concrete firing points and barbed-wire entanglements.

Get That Yuletide Spirit With Holiday Spirits From Weaver's

Inquiries relative Stories and Advertising on this page should be sent to M. Jo Wintermute, Mansfield News-Journal. PHONE 4251-6

Home Supply Center Stocks Varied Line of Fine Wines, 36 Brands of Beer.

Old wine to drink, old wood to burn, old books to read, old friends to converse-with . . . it's American-way habits like these that we deem worth fighting for.

As the season approaches when we'll be thinking more and more of associations with friends . . . when interest is centered in home and hospitality, our attention turns to the arresting problem of fusing food and drink in happy combination.

Certain customs and conventions have grown up about serving wine, just as conventions have evolved about food. Food conventions you can recite by the dozen. For instance, you probably had ham with your eggs this morning and cranberry sauce with your Thanksgiving turkey.

And although personal taste, convention or not, should be your first consideration, you may also want to try the wine and food combinations that have proved lastingly popular. They're easy to learn because the only conventions that are at all important, are based on sound common sense.

Sherman Weaver of Weaver's Home Supply, 59 South Diamond street, is an authority on wine as an accompaniment to your favorite fowl or meat for Holiday meals. Beside the proper table wine, he will suggest an aperitif or cocktail wine and a sweet wine for dessert and between meals. You may also want to discuss with him the care, coddling and traditional temperatures for serving fine wines.

Though your wine "cellar" is a pantry shelf, plan to have a pleasing variety. At Weaver's Home Supply you will find a complete stock of domestic wines as well as Portuguese, Italian and French wines and Vermouth. A few cases of that great French appetizer, French Dubonnet, are still left. Weaver says, but when these are gone, he warns, there will be no further source of supply.

Homemakers will be interested in talking with Mr. Weaver about the use of wines in cooking. According to Weaver, wine is easy to use. It is wonderfully adaptable. There is hardly a dish from soup to dessert but can be enriched and improved by the addition of wine, brandy or rum, Weaver states.

Continuing, he says, "You don't need a special, exotic recipe any more than you need an exotic recipe for using lemon juice or cinnamon or a pinch of sage. Wine belongs in American cooking. At our everyday tables appear a greater variety of foods than are commonly used anywhere else in the world. Why should we omit one of the greatest blessings of the civilized cuisine?"

If you're in the trial and error stage you may buy a clever package holding an assortment of small flasks of wines at Weaver's. These would also make acceptable Christmas gifts or bridge prizes.

In fact much of your Christmas shopping could profitably be done at Weaver's, for they have an interesting variety of gift packages for beer as well as champagne budgets.

In addition to the wide stock of wines carried at Weaver's Home Supply, 36 brands of beer are stocked and you may purchase every delicacy for a "Dutch" lunch.

Seven years a brewmaster and 33 years an employe of the Renner-Weber Brewing company here, Mr. Weaver is a real connoisseur of malt beverages. As an economy measure, he suggests that his customers buy their beer by the case and spend the saving for defense bonds.

Sherman Weaver, proprietor, is shown above with Bob Graham, an employe, waiting to serve you at Weaver's Home Supply, 59 South Diamond street.

New Fuel Ruling Interpreted by Gas Company

Considerable modification in its interpretations of recent limitations to War Production Board order L-31 affecting the connection to gas lines of certain types of gas-fired heating equipment was announced today by W. C. Mead, district manager of the Ohio Fuel Gas company.

In making the announcement, Mr. Mead said, "After discussions with the War Production Board office, we are glad to announce considerable modifications in our initial interpretations of the new limitations so that many residential users of gas heating equipment will be less inconvenienced through moving or replacing their equipment than was first supposed."

It was further pointed out that now customers who are changing address may connect gas-fired space heating equipment in their new address providing equipment of like kind and size was in use by the former occupant.

Following are the complete new interpretations of limitations affecting the connection of gas-fired heating equipment to the lines of residential premises on and after November 30, 1942:

The new limitations do not affect the use of gas-fired equipment already connected to the lines as long as it remains installed at the same address.

No additional gas-fired space heating equipment — including radiant heaters, conversion burners, etc. — may be connected to the lines, but replacement equipment of like kind and size may be installed at the same premises. (Gas furnace may not replace gas-fired boiler, radiant heaters may not replace circulating gas heater, etc., even though the capacity is not increased.)

No gas-fired space heating equipment may be connected at a new address unless equipment of like kind and size was in use by former occupant.

No heating equipment not using gas on the date effective may be converted to the use of gas as a fuel.

Owners of rental property who furnish gas-fired space heaters for the property may permit new tenants to use the equipment as part of the rented property. If the rental property is not so equipped by the owner, but previous tenant had installed and used such equipment, a new tenant would be permitted installation and use of similar equipment.

Limitation order L-31 places additional limitations on non-residential equipment of all types. Further information may be secured at the Gas company office by this class of consumers, Mr. Mead stated.

WELL, SO FAR, SO GOOD... WHAT DID THE KID AND HER NURSE TALK ABOUT WHILE YOU HAD THEM IN THE CHAIR?
ABOUT SOME DAME: NAMED SAVANNAH SALEM...
SAVANNAH SALEM? WHAT ABOUT HER?
NOTHING MUCH, EXCEPT SHE'S A BLONDE! SHE MUST HAVE BEEN WITH MRS HERSHEY!
WHAT ABOUT THIS SAVANNAH SALEM, WHO WAS VISITING MRS. HERSHEY?
MRS HERSHEY CALLED HER A DEAR, DEAR FRIEND, THAT'S ALL I KNOW!
LUDWIG HAS A LATE CALLER...
ERIC! YOU SHOULDN'T HAVE COME HERE! IT'S TOO DANGEROUS!
I KNOW, LUDWIG, BUT THERE'S SOMETHING I HAD TO TELL YOU!
HAS THERE BEEN A SLIP-UP?
NO, EVERYTHING WENT AS PLANNED, BUT SAVANNAH SALEM WAS VISITING MRS HERSHEY THIS AFTERNOON!
WHAT? SHE WAS THERE WHEN THE LETTER CAME?
YES... AND I'M SURE IT WAS SHE WHO TALKED TO ME ON THE 'PHONE!
AND AFTER THAT, NO DOUBT, SHE WENT STRAIGHT TO X-9! IT'S TOO DANGEROUS, ERIC! TOO DANGEROUS! WE MUST GIVE IT UP!
X-9 AND SAVANNAH SALEM COULD BE ELIMINATED, LUDWIG!
NO, NOT NOW! WE WILL LOOK ELSEWHERE FOR THE OIL WE NEED! NO DOUBT THE TIME WILL COME...
WHEN THEY MUST BE ELIMINATED? NO DOUBT OF IT! WHAT SHALL I DO WITH THE HERSHEY GIRL AND HER NURSE... PUT THEM OUT OF THE WAY?
NO! CERTAINLY NOT! YOU WILL SET THEM FREE!
SET THEM FREE? SUCH A WASTE! LET ME CARRY ON ALONE! I CAN EASILY GET A HUNDRED THOUSAND OUT OF HERSHEY...
MY FEELING IS TO DROP THE WHOLE THING! I CANNOT TAKE THE RISK FOR A MERE MATTER OF MONEY!
I UNDERSTAND PERFECTLY, LUDWIG! YOU ARE MUCH TOO VALUABLE! WHAT RISK THERE IS, I WILL TAKE!
WELL, GOOD LUCK! IF YOU WIN, FINE! IF YOU FAIL, YOU PAY THE PRICE...

HOLD IT, BOSS! LET'S SEE THE TEN-SPOT!

WELL, WHAT I SAW THIS AFTERNOON WAS A KIDNAPPIN'! I HEARD A WOMAN SCREECH, AND LOOKED OUT, AND...
...AND THAT'S HOW THE KIDNAPPING WAS DONE, SAVANNAH... THEY JUST RAN THE CHAIR INTO THE CAR, CLOSED THE DOORS AND DROVE AWAY! IT DIDN'T TAKE A MINUTE!
CLEVER, WASN'T IT? NOW WHAT DO WE DO, X-9?
NOW WE FIND THEM! THEY MUST HAVE A HIDEOUT SOMEWHERE NORTH OF TOWN, AND NOT FAR, EITHER, SINCE "SILENT JOE" GOT BACK WITH THE CHAIR AT FIVE O'CLOCK...
BUT THEY MUST NEVER SUSPECT WE'RE LOOKING FOR THEM... I PROMISED ANGELA!
WE'LL LIE LOW, OF COURSE, TILL THE CHILD IS SAFE AT HOME... BUT WE CAN SCOUT AROUND A LITTLE, AT LEAST!
YES... BUT IT FRIGHTENS ME, X-9... IT'S SUCH A RISK! OH, I HAVE AN IDEA...

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Thanksgiving on Our Street.

(Thanksgiving: A day set apart annually in the United States, usually the last Thursday in November, for Thanksgiving to God for bountiful harvests and national mercies. —Webster's Dictionary.)

It was a soldier's Thanksgiving on Broadway this year, as on all the Main streets of America; a day to crystalize what we have felt about the boys in uniform for many months now—thanksgiving for them, and to them. It was no new experience for the fighting men to feel the hospitality and gratitude of our town; every day since war struck, Broadway has shown its thanksgiving to those who are keeping intact the things for which we are most thankful.

Kilgallen

The greatest celebrity took rather timid and self-conscious pains to demonstrate his awareness that he is not nearly as important as the most obscure rookie, and the most anonymous citizen worked as hard for the comfort and cheer of the soldiers as if every task he did was being recorded in the press and newsreels of the nation. This spirit shone with such warm luminosity through the dark of dimmed-out Manhattan that it has taken the place of the bright electric lights that made our Main street so famous.

You see that spirit at the Stage Door Canteen, where clear eyed young men in blue or in khaki smile their thanks to eagerly solicitous busboys — busboys who may very well be Brock Pemberton or Alfred Lunt or other theatrical personages whose names mean nothing to the young men in uniform, because Broadway is new to most of them, and many of them hail from little towns where Saturday night at the village movie house is the closest contact with anything resembling the theater.

At this same Stage Door Canteen, the drama's most eloquent hands give out sandwiches and pour coffee and pile up doughnuts — yes, and occasionally delve into soapsuds when the dishes pile high. Jane Cowl and Tallulah Bankhead and Lynn Fontanne have learned to take to the kitchen with as much enthusiasm as they ever took to a new role; and showgirls and young actresses from the town's biggest hits dance night after night with the boys who can tell where they came from but not where they're going.

On this Thanksgiving just past hundreds of performers and chorus girls forfeited their few leisure hours to demonstrate again that their gratitude refuses to allow them to take the boys for granted. At Leon and Eddie's the entire floor show gave a special matinee performance—a matinee the entertainers begged to be permitted to do when they heard Leon and Eddie were throwing open their doors that afternoon to play hosts at an old-fashioned Thanksgiving dinner to as many hundreds of soldiers and sailors as the room could possibly hold.

Lou Walters gave the same kind of party at his spacious Latin Quarter, aided by the members of his big revue, Jack Dempsey's entertained men in uniforms; so did Reuben's and many others.

But the gratitude of Broadway is not just a one-day gesture; it comes from the heart, and will be as warm a week from now or six months from now as it is today.

It goes on 24 hours a day. The girls of the Father Duffy Canteen roll through the dark streets throughout the lonely hours night after night in every kind of weather to bring the boys a snack and a smile and a friendly word of greeting . . . A great actress—Judith Anderson—travels all the way to Fort Mead, Maryland, to bring "Macbeth" to the soldiers there, and suffers her worst attack of stage fright until tumultuous applause at the fall of the curtain proves that the boys like Shakespeare, too. Girls like Hedy Lamarr and Dorothy Lamour do one-night stands from coast to coast to sell millions of dollars' worth of war bonds . . . Madeleine Carroll turns her back on the cameras and the cash to devote all her time to a post at the Seamen's institute . . . Milton Berle bringing the best kind of laughter to dozens and dozens of camps.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD — It is several weeks since the start of Southern California's "rainy season," and even the weather bureau has been permitted to divulge the secret. So it is time for an essay on rain and its peculiar effect on Hollywood's economic well-being.

Coons

Other places rain helps the farmers or ruins picnics, but here it is a matter of high finance The day it began pouring steadily for a time—the first time since last spring—there were repercussions.

Garbo I suppose, went walking in the downpour, though to tell the truth as a shelter-seeking softie I have never met her in the act. Nor did I see Bette Davis, another required water baby, run out to play in it.

BUT these aquatic sports have nothing to do with finance, unless the participants happen to catch cold. And there is where the weather rubs the movie ledgers on the red-ink side.

On the set of "Nothing Ventured" which has been plagued by illness, Director Wesley Ruggles sniffled, sneezed and grinned sardonically thinking of the budget. Ruggles is very fond of budgets as things to start out with. They keep the front office happy, he is sure, and until a million monkey wrenches hit them they are neat pieces of paper. All Ruggles had to contend with was a series of colds and attacks of flu, which removed successively Lana Turner, Robert Young, Walter Brennan and finally himself. The rain simply clinched matters.

On another set, following a trip to the studio through the rain, Humphrey Bogart sneezed. With the quiet, furious effciency for which Hollywood is noted, telephone calls were made. Two men in white, with little black bags, hurried over to the stage. Bogey had his head tilted back, his throat sprayed, his insides doctored with aspirin and lemon juice, and went on working.

FOR players who respond emotionally to weather, rain has other hazards. Peter Loore is depressed by rain, for instance. He says it makes him think sad thoughts and indulge in sad self-criticism. This could be costly if a rainy day's shooting required him to be funny. So far he played in luck — that first rainy day he had to play a blue, blue scene for "Edge of Darkness."

We must close our rainy essay with a line from Ilka Chase, who had this to say about our climate. "It's like a blonde girl running in and out of a Turkish bath. Beautiful maybe, but too warm or too cold and unable to make up her mind."

And we are, of course, all wet.

Chatter Corner

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Reaser and daughter, Carol Louise, of Ashland returning home after spending the holiday with Mr and Mrs. Philip Wolfe.

Mrs. John Hill of Lexington chatting with friends while in town yesterday to make application for supplementary gas rationing . . . Mrs. Dean Eckert garnering in her "Little Mozarts" for their club meeting last night . . . Miss Bettie Gibson boarding the bus for Columbus to see "Watch on the Rhine," at the Hartman theater and then to be the overnight guest of Janet Baughman Mansfield student at Ohio State university.

Mrs. Frances Scattergood stopping to talk to a friend while on a shopping trip downtown. . . . Friends jokingly accusing William W. Hammett, Mansfield letter carrier, of purposely spraining his ankle to avoid the heavy delivery of Christmas mail. . . . Major R. B. "Mud" Gardner, home on seven-day leave, being feted by friends last evening at the Mansfield-Leland hotel. . . . He came to Mansfield from Great Falls, Mont., where he has been in charge of planes being ferried to Alaska, and will report to Newark, N. J., next week.

Phyllis M. Oster, former N.J society editor, now at the Richland County Tuberculosis Sanitarium, being deluged with birthday cards and gifts from her many friends Friday. . . . Jay Swigart putting a penny in a gum machine for his daily supply of gum. . . . Kathleen Gehl calling a laundry to reserve 15 large and two small tablecloths for the Scout venison dinner party Monday.

Rub Neal getting a day off to go hunting and then being too tired to take advantage of the time . . . Sgt. and Mrs. Merrill Swigart sending pictures of cocoanut trees in West Palm Beach, Fla., to Mansfield friends. . . . Bob Curry helping scout "minute-men" with final instructions for putting up Christmas seal posters on lamp posts.

Bill Doolittle getting excited all over again after seeing the Ohio State team in a news reel now showing. . . . Fred Lavender telling Dick Sowash that pre-med at Western Reserve university is no snap.

Pvt. Joseph Kiamy of Brown Field Ky., paying a surprise visit to his aunt, Mrs. Anna Kiamy, 318 West Longview avenue. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Wade Simmons, 250 Helen avenue, and Miss Grace Barnet, 15 Blanche street leaving for Camp Grant Ill. to visit Pvt. Bernard B. Simmons who is stationed there.

CATLETT LOSES AS CONTENDER FOR G.O.P. WHIP

O'Neill Chosen as Ohio House Senate, Organize; Veterans Picked For Posts.

C. William O'Neill, representative from Washington county, today had been chosen Republican majority whip of the new Ohio house of representatives over John L. Catlett of Richland county and Ralph Siferd, Auglaize county representative.

Veterans were placed in control of the G. O. P. majorities in the house and senate in caucus yesterday in Columbus. The 95th general assembly will convene Jan. 4.

Catlett, who will begin his second term in the Ohio house in January, was considered a strong contender for the post taken by O'Neill.

House members chose William H. Deddens of Hamilton county as speaker pro tem. He also will serve as majority leader. Otis R. Johnson of Fulton county was re-named clerk of the house.

State Senator P. H. Rogers, veteran Republican from the 27th-29th district which includes Richland county, was named to the senate patronage committee which has five members.

Republican members-elect returned for third terms House Speaker William M. McCulloch of Miami county and Frank E. Whittemore of Summit county, president pro tem of the senate.

The legislators also voted unanimously to return other major officials of both houses and heard Gov. John W. Bricker declare their first job would be to put "the state's house in perfect order for aiding the war effort."

Bricker said the Ohio administration was "proud of its war effort," but must be given all powers necessary to carry out the war program.

The governor added he hoped for a short session although "all necessary matters must be taken care of."

Thomas E. Bateman of Columbus was renamed senate clerk and Cliff Martin of Hamilton county was endorsed for re-election as sergeant-at-arms.

Both caucuses left selection of clerical workers to patronage committees.

House Democrats were to caucus at New Philadelphia and Democratic senators in Cleveland today, principally to select minority floor leaders.

WHIPPING CREAM TAKES BEATING

Sale of whipping cream will be forbidden as soon as present supplies are exhausted, Mansfield dairy managers said today.

In the war production order, Clyde E. Beardslee, chief of the dairy section of WPB that stopping the sale of whipping cream would "help relieve the most critical butter shortage in 10 years and the fluid milk shortage both locally and throughout the nation."

Although the delivery of coffee cream was not affected, local dairies were informed that the butter fat in the cream must not exceed 19 per cent. This necessitates the reduction of one per cent for some plants.

STUDIES CITY FUND PROBLEMS

Council Finance Committee Meets, Prepares Slate For Tuesday Session.

Several financial matters, said to be of minor importance, were considered yesterday afternoon by council's finance committee for submission to council as a whole at December's regular meeting Tuesday evening.

The matters under consideration were drafted by City Solicitor Leslie K. Wagner at the request of Mayor W. J. Locke but did not include study of pay increases which have been petitioned for by various city employe groups.

Solicitor Wagner indicated that Locke is recommending salary adjustments for several salaried employes through juggling of expense account allowances.

Legislation placed in the council hopper today by George C. Kyle, member-at-large, asks appointment of A. L. Allen, William Beer, jr., and Dimon Herring as a board of estimate to determine assessments against benefitted properties for the improvement of Bartley avenue and Glenbeck lane at a fee of $5 per member.

For the determination of assessments against Public Square properties benefitted by the resurfacing of U. S. Route 42 each board member will receive a fee of $25 under the Kyle proposal.

Other legislation filed yesterday calls for certification to the county auditor for inclusion in real estate tax statements bills for weed cutting in different sections of the city, and six bills for sanitary sewer installations.

Several minor matters, including the proposed purchase of a new car for the chief of the fire department, will be up for consideration Tuesday, carrying over from the November meeting.

Youths In Court In Purse Theft, Must Earn Money

Six 14 to 16-year old youths who had participated in purse-snatching and a series of petty crimes over a short period "will realize the effort that goes into making money" by the time they repay approximately $75 through half-dollars, quarters and less earned after school hours.

In giving all six a bench parole upon the condition that three in the group pay a small amount of money into the court each week to cover the $15 stolen in a purse-snatching episode Sunday night and the other three also give an accounting of $60, that by now has been paid by their parents, Juvenile Judge Stuart Cramer said that he wanted them all to "realize the effort that goes into making money."

The trio in the first case divided the contents of a purse snatched by one of the group from Mrs. D. D. Keith as she passed an alley on Park avenue west between the American Legion garage and Gardner garage.

MARINE WHO ESCAPED FROM WAKE ISLAND SAYS IT WAS 'ROUTINE'

SAN DIEGO, Calif. —(AP)— The only man to escape death or capture at Wake Island, Lieut. Col. Walter L. J. Bayler, today modestly described his departure from Wake as "simple routine."

Back in his Coronado home for the first time since the war started, Bayler said in an interview that his air journey from Wake resulted from compliance with orders—"something every marine does every day."

Bayler came here from the Solomons where he had extended duty in the aerial warfare over Guadalcanal. Bayler had heard reports that he flew his own battered plane, or that a navy patrol plane which landed at Wake was sent there for the specific purpose of bringing him out.

Other reports, Bayler said, had him on a raft, with a canoe paddle in the open ocean.

"It was the simple routine thing of following out orders that every marine does every day," Bayler related. "This plane flew in with a small amount of official mail for the units stationed on Wake. My work was finished on Wake and I was needed at Midway. My orders read to proceed by first available air transportation to Midway—and this was the first plane and the pilot had room for one."

Royal Terry, 76½ East Fourth street, deserted his cash, in the opinion of police who can't come to believe the cash hid out on him itself. Around last midnight Capt. Paul Whipp and Patrolman Richard Hecht heard Terry's complaint that someone had ransacked his room, taking a billfold containing $15. The police then searched the Terry quarters, learning that Terry himself hadn't ransacked long enough — the billfold with cash unspent was found reposing peacefully beneath a rumpled pillow on his bed.

Thieves who gained entrance to the Lautsbaugh pharmacy, 8 South Main street, apparently were frightened away with only $5 in cash as loot, Guy H. Lautsbaugh, proprietor, told police this morning.

Beard, with Capt. Paul Whipp and Patrolman Richard Hecht, searched the store, finding the cash register had been pried open and $3 taken. A bank containing $2 also was stolen. An automatic shotgun belonging to the store had been discarded near the rear door, indicating a hurried flight.

MURDERESS TO GO TO CHAIR AT NOON TODAY

Granted Last Request to Talk With Husband Serving 50 Years For Slaying.

(By United Press)

LAKE CHARLES, La.—The dry cleaner's boy stepped over the wires leading from the electric chair in the Parish prison to the portable generator outside this morning, delivering Toni Jo Henry's best and only dress in ample time for her to wear it when she dies around noon for having committed murder.

Toni Jo, "Tiger Women" though she is, flatly refused to apepar before the executioner and the official witnesses in a spotted and soiled dress and the head jailer got a "wrapper" for her so the cleaner could freshen it up overnight.

Though a telephone line was being kept open to Baton Rouge, the capital, in case Gov. Sam Jones changes his mind and commutes her sentence or grants her a stay, there was practically no chance that she could be saved. She has been 33 months in the one cell, had had three reprieves and her case had twice been passed on by the state supreme court.

In February, 1940, she and Horace Finnon Burks, wanting an automobile to use for bank robbery, held up J. P. Calloway, a Houston, Tex., salesman. She drove him into a rice field with her pistol, compelled him to strip in the bitter cold, then told him to get on his knees and beg for his life. He did so and she then shot him in the head.

She explained to the police who arrested her that she had done so because she despises men—all men, except her husband, Claude (Cowboy) Henry, who had then just been arrested for killing a San Antonio policeman, because "he's the only man who ever treated me decent—see?" She wanted to hold up a bank in order to get the money to finance his defense. Her husband is now serving a 50-year term for the murder in Texas state prison.

Mrs. Henry had formed her opinion of men in various gulf coast houses of prostitution, the profession which she entered at 13 from a childhood in the San Antonio slums. She acquired the narcotics habit at 15 and no small part of her love for Henry was based upon the fact that he helped her break the habit just before he killed the policeman. She is 26 now.

Having been received back into the Catholic church and having told "The Cowboy" good bye by long distance telephone, she was ready to die.

The talk with her husband had been her last request and was arranged by local authorities.

Henry didn't say much. He wept all the while.

Limit Farmer's Meat Selling, But Not His Eating

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Although farmers who raise their own meat animals and slaughter them for consumption on the farm are under no restrictions so far as family meat eating is concerned, they cannot peddle meat to others without subjecting themselves to the same rules that govern packers and slaughterers generally, the OPA announced today.

OPA pointed out that both large and small slaughterers are restricted in the amount of meat they may deliver in the current quarter. For example, the small slaughterers may deliver no more than the amount they delivered during the corresponding quarter of 1941, while the large packers can deliver only certain percentages of their last year's production.

OPA officials said a farmer, who during the corresponding quarter of last year, sold meat off his farm, can continue to sell, but cannot sell any more than he sold during the same quarter last year. However, if the farmer was not in the retail meat business last year at this time, he cannot enter it now under OPA regulations.

NAZIS MOVE ON BIG AIR BASE NEAR TOULON

Arrest All Officers of French Fleet After Scuttling; Vichy Leaders Ousted.

r news of the scuttling of the Toulon fleet, believed that as the result of the German attack, powerful French naval units neutralized at Alexandria, Egypt, and Gibraltar and based on Algeria, Morocco and Martinique might join the Allied naval forces for active duty.

British warships searched the Mediterranean in hope that they might pick up and escort to safety any French ships which escaped during the suicide of the main fleet at Toulon.

Men of the Fighting French fleet already fighting with the Allies paraded in the French admiralty courtyard here today and all Fighting Frenchmen observed a minute of silence in honor of the Toulon dead. Flags at the French admiralty and Gen. Charles De Gaulle's headquarters were at half staff.

A Vichy Havas dispatch reported Toulon quiet this morning, with street cars running, after a night in which explosions shook houses and damaged many of them as ammunition exploded in dumps and explosions detonated in scuttled ships. A pall of smoke hung over the city so thick, Havas said, there it was in semi-darkness.

Reports reached neutral Switzerland and Spain that the men of the Toulon fleet put up a desperate and gallant six hour fight to keep the Germans off their ships, and that they mowed down with their machine guns all German and Italian troops who approached.

Laborde hastily summoned a group of trusted young officers to pass the word along to "carry out plan B"—which was for every commander to try to get away with his own ship and if he failed to blow it up.

Some vessels tried to get up steam but were attacked by German planes, the Spanish advices said.

The main batteries of the battleships were exploded, Madrid reported, with the result that it was believed most of the men aboard were killed.

Gen. De Gaulle, leader of the Fighting French, broadcasting here, said:

"Our fleet has been scuttled so that the nation might at least be spared the supreme shame of seeing his ships become ships of the enemy. Though this tragedy has been added to so many tragedies, France stands united—yes, united in her determination to wipe out all the atrocious consequences of disaster and betrayal. On to victory! There is no other road and there never was."

At Algiers, Darlan said:

"It was easy to foresee that the granting of free zone status to Toulon was only a German trap to get French vessels under the control of German guns.

"On Nov. 11 I invited the fleet to leave Toulon. By not doing so its officers thought they would save their ships. They lost them and caused the deaths of many officers, soldiers and sailors. . . .

"French Africa is the only place in the world where our flag flies freely, where the army carried its arms, where the fleet has its flags hoisted and where the air force can freely use its wings. We are the sole hope of France and we must show ourselves worthy of her."

It was believed here that the scuttling of the fleet, if confirmed officially, would strengthen Darlan's position and do much to appease his critics. He had promised the Allies that the fleet would not aid the Axis.

Stockholm heard reports that Pierre Laval had taken advantage of France's new ordeal to increase his own power.

According to these reports he succeeded in getting Marshal Henri Phillippe Petain to authorize him to alter the Vichy constitution as he chose without consulting Petain.

He had previously got Petain to sign a decree dissolving the French armed forces, as the Germans demanded.

GEAR UP FOR BUYING RUSH

Gas Stations to Curb Service In Anticipation of Heavy Gas Purchases.

Gasoline dealers are urged to do the same, obtaining gummed sheets on which to keep the various gas ration coupons, each book's coupons to be held on its own particular sheet.

Retailers have been asked to remove coupon No. 27 from the sugar book whenever any coffee buyer tomorrow or Monday admits having on hand more than their legal quota of one pound per adult person—a person 15 years old or over.

Java swiggers in Mansfield, as elsewhere throughout the nation, can resume coffee buying as soon as their grocer opens after midnight — providing the stock on hand is not disqualifying for purchase. If it is, you just swallow the lump in your throat and go home to drink up what you already have.

But the pound you get tomorrow has to last you until Jan. 3 when another coupon becomes of age. President Roosevelt and others have suggested "seconds" on the grounds — a novel little stunt copied from the boys who live in the jungles down by the tracks.

The jungle bums themselves will have to coin a new slogan now, for the "Hey, buddy, how's for a cuppa coffee" is definitely out for the duration and could easily result in open rioting.

which passes on all supply bills, echoed Boren's sentiments. Henderson was termed "a menace to the war effort" by Representative Taber of New York, ranking Republican on the committee, who suggested OPA's funds should be drastically curtailed.

Some members went so far as to suggest that OPA be abolished entirely and its functions turned over to James Byrnes, economic stabilization director.

From influential Republicans came predictions that one of the first things the strengthened minority would demand when the new congress convenes would be a complete investigation of OPA.

The congressional protests, voiced in the house late yesterday, were spearheaded by a group of Democrats, who applauded the suggestion of Representative Fox that congress "should put the bureaucrats on record now" that "their regime is going to end."

The OPA chief was accused by Representative Herbert (D-La) of envisioning "the day when democracy will make way for a complete bureaucracy and regimentation of the American people."

Henderson's opponents failed to be mollified by his statement before a senate war committee that gasoline rationing would be administered on a "common sense" basis and that farmers and other essential drivers would be given ample allotments.

farm machinery. He complimented city and county governments for the leading part the county had taken in the collection of scrap and particularly cited The News-Journal for "its excellent work" in promoting the drive.

Reports from the various counties throughout the state are still incomplete, Weible said, although he indicated that Richland county stood high on the list. Hamilton county received the first pennant.

Stough's committee was present for the ceremonies as were county officials, Mansfield and Richland county school superintendents and principals and a number of invited guests including Mayor William J. Locke, Grattan Johnston, city manager of Warner Brothers' theaters, who had sponsored a scrap matinee; James M. Hill, president of the Empire Sheet and Metal company, promotion chairman in the drive, and John W. Graham, general manager of The News-Journal which presented a trophy to the city school collecting the most scrap per capita. The trophy was won by St. Peter's school upon a collection of 792 tons of scrap or 149 pounds per pupil.

James Brownscombe acted as master of ceremonies and prior to introducing the speaker pointed out the four major efforts in the drive, industrial, school, rural salvage and The News-Journal contest for the schools.

Music was furnished by three music pupils of the Smart Studios. They were Marjorie Ferguson, Eileen Schuler and Helen Sampsel who also played for the singing of "America."

After the program the audience adjourned to the courthouse yard where the flag was raised by Tony Moritz, courthouse custodian.

ALLIED COLUMN STRIKES CLOSE TO VITAL TUNIS

Airtroops, Armored Forces Join In All-Out Push To Oust Axis.

troops and are striking hard at Allied-controlled air fields, it was disclosed.

Latest official word from headquarters placed the forward elements of Gen. Anderson's army 15 miles west of Tunis, confirming the occupation of the town of Tabourba following capture by the Allies of the important rail junction of Mejez El Bab, 30 miles west southwest of the capital.

The present advance of the Allied troops is being concentrated in the northern area of Tunisia where the Germans and Italians hold their strongest foothold.

Gen. Anderson's army sloshed ahead across roads heavily covered with mud as a result of seasonal rains. Allied air forces, it was admitted are hampered by having to land on muddy fields but despite this handicap are engaging in tremendous activity.

Combined activity by Allied aircraft and armored columns was taking a heavy toll of Axis planes and airport installations.

African headquarters cited an instance where a British armored column cooperated with air squadrons to destroy an enemy airfield in the central sector of Tunisia, smashing at least 40 Stuka divebombers on the ground. American planes taking part in the action completely destroyed the airdrome installations.

The attack on the airfield came as a complete surprise to the Germans, the British armored column striking west across country far in advance of the main Allied bodies to eliminate the field as a base for enemy attacks against the marching Allied troops.

Activity in the southern Tunisia battle zone, headquarters said, currently is restricted to patrol clashes brought about by lightning thrusts against German armored columns moving along roadways.

Allies Hit Sicilian Airdrome In 2 Raids

CAIRO —(INS)— The Gherbini airdrome in Sicily has been heavily attacked by Allied air forces in two consecutive raids, the British Middle East high command revealed today.

For the second straight day the British said there was nothing to report from land forces between Agedabia and El Agheila in the Libyan desert.

Allied medium bombers blasted hangars and buildings at the Gherbini airdrome Thursday night and again last night, headquarters of Gen. Sir Harold R. L. G. Alexander announced in a communique.

Heavy bombers ranged out over the Italian Dodecanese islands off the coast of Greece, scoring hits on a jetty where ships were moored at Porto Lago bay.

Long-range fighters operating between Sicily and North Africa shot down a Junkers 88 transport plane.

Nazi Communications Begin To Crack Up

LONDON —(AP)— Adolf Hitler's interior communications lines have begun to fail "just when he needs them most," Philip Noel-Baker, parliamentary secretary to the ministry of war transport, declared today in an exhortation to transport workers in Axis territory to commit sabotage.

"Every railway car that is wrongly labelled, every tank that is punctured, every radiator that leaks, every order that is misunderstood, every bridge that collapses is a victory won for freedom," he broadcast to the workers over the BBC.

REDS TAKE CITY AND POCKET FOE

Continue Successful Attacks In Stalingrad Area, Northern Advance.

in northern Stalingrad and several important buildings which had been occupied by the Nazis were recaptured.

In the factory area of the industrial city the Germans were dislodged from 20 blockhouses.

Northwest and south of the city "our troops before Stalingrad continued their offensive in the same direction as before," the noon communique of the Soviet high command said.

The communique revealed that the Germans attempted a counter-attack against the southern wing of Marshal Semyon Timoshenko's advancing forces but the Nazi assault failed.

After subduing the German effort the Soviets smashed their way into an inhabited locality "close on the heels of the Germans," it was said.

The continued progress of both the northern and southern arms of the huge Soviet pincers indicated that Marshal Timoshenko soon may be able to close off the Nazis in the Don bend from all avenues of escape and entrap an estimated 300,000 German troops.

In the west Caucasus the Red army carried out offensive operations northeast of the Black sea naval base of Tuapse and captured an important strategic height. German and Rumanian counter-attacks were repulsed handily, the high command said.

A force of 1,000 Nazis was reported annihilated on the Leningrad front during the past few days.

For the first time in several weeks the Soviet midnight communique referred to fighting on the Karelian front with the announcement that 200 Finnish troops had been slain in the past four days.

Russian dispatches told of renewed Soviet activity on the Leningrad front where sharp thrusts into enemy positions reduced a number of strongpoints and firing posts.

But there was still no mention in Moscow communiques of the reported Russian drive west of Rzhev where Berlin said a strong Soviet offensive was driving on the rail center of Veliki Luki sector within 100 miles of the Latvian border.

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Thanksgiving on Our Street.

(Thanksgiving: A day set apart annually in the United States, usually the last Thursday in November, for Thanksgiving to God for bountiful harvests and national mercies. —Webster's Dictionary.)

It was a soldier's Thanksgiving on Broadway this year, as on all the Main streets of America; a day to crystalize what we have felt about the boys in uniform for many months now—thanksgiving for them, and to them. It was no new experience for the fighting men to feel the hospitality and gratitude of our town; every day since war struck, Broadway has shown its thanksgiving to those who are keeping intact the things for which we are most thankful.

Kilgallen

The greatest celebrity took rather timid and self-conscious pains to demonstrate his awareness that he is not nearly as important as the most obscure rookie, and the most anonymous citizen worked as hard for the comfort and cheer of the soldiers as if every task he did was being recorded in the press and newsreels of the nation. This spirit shone with such warm luminosity through the dark of dimmed-out Manhattan that it has taken the place of the bright electric lights that made our Main street so famous.

You see that spirit at the Stage Door Canteen, where clear eyed young men in blue or in khaki smile their thanks to eagerly solicitous busboys — busboys who may very well be Brock Pemberton or Alfred Lunt or other theatrical personages whose names mean nothing to the young men in uniform, because Broadway is new to most of them, and many of them hail from little towns where Saturday night at the village movie house is the closest contact with anything resembling the theater.

At this same Stage Door Canteen the drama's most eloquent hands give out sandwiches and pour coffee and pile up doughnuts — yes, and occasionally delve into soapsuds when the dishes pile high. Jane Cowl and Tallulah Bankhead and Lynn Fontanne have learned to take to the kitchen with as much enthusiasm as they ever took to a new role; and showgirls and young actresses from the town's biggest hits dance night after night with the boys who can tell where they came from but not where they're going.

On his Thanksgiving just past hunureds of performers and chorus girls forfeited their few leisure hours to demonstrate again that their gratitude refuses to allow them to take the boys for granted. At Leon and Eddie's the entire floor show gave a special matinee performance—a matinee the entertainers begged to be permitted to do when they heard Leon and Eddie were throwing open their doors that afternoon to play hosts at an old-fashioned Thanksgiving dinner to as many hundreds of soldiers and sailors as the room could possibly hold.

Lou Walters gave the same kind of party at his spacious Latin Quarter, aided by the members of his big revue, Jack Dempsey's entertained men in uniforms; so did Reuben's and many others.

But the gratitude of Broadway is not just a one-day gesture; it comes from the heart, and will be as warm a week from now or six months from now as it is today.

It goes on 24 hours a day. The girls of the Father Duffy Canteen roll through the dark streets throughout the lonely hours night after night in every kind of weather to bring the boys a snack and a smile and a friendly word of greeting . . . A great actress—Judith Anderson—travels all the way to Fort Mead, Maryland, to bring "Macbeth" to the soldiers there, and suffers her worst attack of stage fright until tumultuous applause at the fall of the curtain proves that the boys like Shakespeare, too. Girls like Hedy Lamarr and Dorothy Lamour do one-night stands from coast to coast to sell millions of dollars' worth of war bonds . . . Madeleine Carroll turns her back on the cameras and the cash to devote all her time to a post at the Seamen's institute . . . Milton Berle bringing the best kind of laughter to dozens and dozens of camps.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD — It is several weeks since the start of Southern California's "rainy season," and even the weather bureau has been permitted to divulge the secret. So it is time for an essay on rain and its peculiar effect on Hollywood's economic well-being.

Coons

Other places rain helps the farmers or ruins picnics, but here it is a matter of high finance. The day it began pouring steadily for a time—the first time since last spring—there were repercussions.

Garbo, I suppose, went walking in the downpour, though to tell the truth as a shelter-seeking softie I have never met her in the act. Nor did I see Bette Davis, another reputed water baby, run out to play in it.

BUT these aquatic sports have nothing to do with finance, unless the participants happen to catch cold. And there is where the weather rubs the movie ledgers on the red-ink side.

On the set of "Nothing Ventured" which has been plagued by illness Director Wesley Ruggles sniffled sighed and grinned sardonically thinking of the budget. Ruggles is very fond of budgets as things to start out with. They keep the front office happy, he is sure and until a million monkey wrenches hit them they are neat pieces of paper. All Ruggles had to contend with was a series of colds and attacks of flu, which removed successively Lana Turner, Robert Young, Walter Brennan and finally himself. The rain simply clinched matters.

On another set, following a trip to the studio through the rain, Humphrey Bogart sneezed. With the quiet, furious effciency for which Hollywood is noted, telephone calls were made. Two men in white, with little black bags, hurried over to the stage. Bogey had his head tilted back, his throat sprayed, his insides doctored with aspirin and lemon juice, and went on working.

FOR players who respond emotionally to weather, rain has other hazards. Peter Loore is depressed by rain, for instance. He says it makes him think sad thoughts and indulge in sad self-criticism. This could be costly if a rainy day's shooting required him to be funny. So far he played in luck — that first rainy day he had to play a blue, blue scene for "Edge of Darkness."

We must close our rainy essay with a line from Ilka Chase, who had this to say about our climate. "It's like a blonde girl running in and out of a Turkish bath. Beautiful maybe, but too warm or too cold and unable to make up her mind."

And we are, of course, all wet.

CATLETT LOSES AS CONTENDER FOR G.O.P. WHIP

O'Neill Chosen as Ohio House Senate, Organize; Veterans Picked For Posts.

C. William O'Neill, representative from Washington county, today had been chosen Republican majority whip of the new Ohio house of representatives over John L. Catlett of Richland county and Ralph Siferd, Auglaize county representative.

Veterans were placed in control of the G. O. P majorities in the house and senate in caucus yesterday in Columbus. The 95th general assembly will convene Jan 4.

Catlett, who will begin his second term in the Ohio house in January, was considered a strong contender for the post taken by O'Neill.

House members chose William H. Deddens of Hamilton county as speaker pro tem. He also will serve as majority leader. Otis R. Johnson of Fulton county was re-named clerk of the house.

State Senator P. H. Rogers, veteran Republican from the 27th-29th district which includes Richland county, was named to the senate patronage committee which has five members.

Republican members-elect returned for third terms House Speaker William M. McCulloch of Miami county and Frank E. Whittemore of Summit county, president pro tem of the senate.

The legislators also voted unanimously to retain other major officials of both houses and heard Gov. John W. Bricker declare their first job would be to put "the state's house in perfect order for aiding the war effort."

Bricker said the Ohio administration was "proud of its war effort," but must be given all powers necessary to carry out the war program.

The governor added he hoped for a short session although "all necessary matters must be taken care of."

Thomas E. Bateman of Columbus was renamed senate clerk and Cliff Martin of Hamilton county was endorsed for re-election as sergeant-at-arms.

Both caucuses left selection of clerical workers to patronage committees.

House Democrats were to caucus at New Philadelphia and Democratic senators in Cleveland today, principally to select minority floor leaders.

4 ARRESTED

Drivers Face Speed Charges After Arrests on Route 42.

Four traffic violators were arrested by state highway patrolmen yesterday on U. S. Route 42.

Harry E. Kuhlman, Philadelphia, Pa., was cited to appear in Ashland police court Dec 1 to answer a speeding charge. He posted $25 bond. William P. Murphy, Youngstown, was fined $10 and costs in the Ashland court yesterday after state highway officials charged him with crossing the yellow line.

Two accused speeders from Akron going 70 miles an hour appeared in Ashland court. Daisy P. Lee paid a $10 fine and James Heddery was confined in jail in default of bond, awaiting hearing today.

WHIPPING CREAM TAKES BEATING

Sale of whipping cream will be forbidden as soon as present supplies are exhausted, Mansfield dairy managers said today.

In the war production order, Clyde E. Beardslee, chief of the dairy section of WPB that stopping the sale of whipping cream would "help relieve the most critical butter shortage in 10 years and the fluid milk shortage both locally and throughout the nation."

Although the delivery of coffee cream was not affected, local dairies were informed that the butter fat in the cream must not exceed 19 per cent. This necessitates the reduction of one per cent for some plants.

STUDIES CITY FUND PROBLEMS

Council Finance Committee Meets, Prepares Slate For Tuesday Session.

Several financial matters, said to be of minor importance, were considered yesterday afternoon by council's finance committee for submission to council as a whole at December's regular meeting Tuesday evening.

The matters under consideration were drafted by City Solicitor Leslie K. Wagner at the request of Mayor W. J. Locke but did not include study of pay increases which have been petitioned for by various city employe groups.

Solicitor Wagner indicated that Locke is recommending salary adjustments for several salaried employes through juggling of expense account allowances.

Legislation placed in the council hopper today by George C. Kyle, member-at-large, asks appointment of A. L. Allen, William Beer, jr., and Dimon Herring as a board of estimate to determine assessments against benefitted properties for the improvement of Bartley avenue and Glenbeck lane at a fee of $5 per member.

For the determination of assessments against Public Square properties benefitted by the resurfacing of U. S. Route 42 each board member will receive a fee of $25 under the Kyle proposal.

Other legislation filed yesterday calls for certification to the county auditor for inclusion in real estate tax statements bills for weed cutting in different sections of the city, and six bills for sanitary sewer installations.

Several minor matters, including the proposed purchase of a new car for the chief of the fire department, will be up for consideration Tuesday, carrying over from the November meeting.

Youths In Court In Purse Theft, Must Earn Money

SIX 14 to 16-year old youths who had participated in purse-snatching and a series of petty crimes over a short period "will realize the effort that goes into making money" by the time they repay approximately $75 through half-dollars, quarters and less earned after school hours.

In giving all six a bench parole upon the condition that three in the group pay a small amount of money into the court each week to cover the $15 stolen in a purse-snatching episode Sunday night and the other three also give an accounting of $60, that by now has been paid by their parents. Juvenile Judge Stuart Cramer said that he wanted them all to "realize the effort that goes into making money."

The trio in the first case divided the contents of a purse snatched by one of the group from Mrs. D. D. Keith as she passed an alley on Park avenue west between the American Legion garage and Gardner garage.

MARINE WHO ESCAPED FROM WAKE ISLAND SAYS IT WAS 'ROUTINE'

SAN DIEGO, Calif. —(AP)— The only man to escape death or capture at Wake Island, Lieut. Col. Walter L. J. Bayler, today modestly described his departure from Wake as "simple routine."

Back in his Coronado home for the first time since the war started, Bayler said in an interview that his air journey from Wake resulted from compliance with orders—"something every marine does every day."

Bayler came here from the Solomons where he had extended duty in the aerial warfare over Guadalcanal. Bayler had heard reports that he flew his own battered plane, or that a navy patrol plane which landed at Wake was sent there for the specific purpose of bringing him out.

Other reports, Bayler said, had him on a raft, with a canoe paddle in the open ocean.

"It was the simple routine thing of following out orders that every marine does every day," Bayler related. "This plane flew in with a small amount of official mail for the units stationed on Wake. My work was finished on Wake and I was needed at Midway. My orders read to proceed by first available air transportation to Midway—and this was the first plane and the pilot had room for one."

Royal Terry, 76½ East Fourth street, deserted his cash, in the opinion of police who can't come to believe the cash hid out on him itself. Around last midnight Capt. Paul Whipp and Patrolman Richard Hecht heard Terry's complaint that someone had ransacked his room, taking a billfold containing $15. The police then searched the Terry quarters, learning that Terry himself hadn't ransacked long enough — the billfold with cash unspent was found reposing peacefully beneath a rumpled pillow on his bed.

Beard, with Capt. Paul Whipp and Patrolman Richard Hecht, searched the store, finding the cash register had been pried open and $3 taken. A bank containing $2 also was stolen. An automatic shotgun belonging to the store had been discarded near the rear door, indicating a hurried flight.

MURDERESS TO GO TO CHAIR AT NOON TODAY

Granted Last Request to Talk With Husband Serving 50 Years For Slaying.

(By United Press)

LAKE CHARLES, La.—The dry cleaner's boy stepped over the wires leading from the electric chair in the Parish prison to the portable generator outside this morning, delivering Toni Jo Henry's best and only dress in ample time for her to wear it when she dies around noon for having committed murder.

Toni Jo, "Tiger Women" though she is, flatly refused to apepar before the executioner and the official witnesses in a spotted and soiled dress and the head jailer got a "wrapper" for her so the cleaner could freshen it up overnight.

Though a telephone line was being kept open to Baton Rouge, the capital, in case Gov. Sam Jones changes his mind and commutes her sentence or grants her a stay, there was practically no chance that she could be saved. She has been 33 months in the one cell, had had three reprieves and her case had twice been passed on by the state supreme court.

In February, 1940, she and Horace Finnon Burks, wanting an automobile to use for bank robbery, held up J. P. Calloway a Houston, Tex., salesman. She drove him into a rice field with her pistol, compelled him to strip in the bitter cold, then told him to get on his knees and beg for his life. He did so and she then shot him in the head.

She explained to the police who arrested her that she had done so because she despises men—all men, except her husband, Claude (Cowboy) Henry, who had then just been arrested for killing a San Antonio policeman, because "he's the only man who ever treated me decent—see?" She wanted to hold up a bank in order to get the money to finance his defense. Her husband is now serving a 50-year term for the murder in Texas state prison.

Mrs. Henry had formed her opinion of men in various gulf coast houses of prostitution, the profession which she entered at 13 from a childhood in the San Antonio slums. She acquired the narcotics habit at 15 and no small part of her love for Henry was based upon the fact that he helped her break the habit just before he killed the policeman. She is 26 now.

Having been received back into the Catholic church and having told "The Cowboy" good bye by long distance telephone, she was ready to die.

The talk with her husband had been her last request and was arranged by local authorities.

Henry didn't say much. He wept all the while.

Limit Farmer's Meat Selling, But Not His Eating

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Although farmers who raise their own meat animals and slaughter them for consumption on the farm are under no restrictions so far as family meat eating is concerned, they cannot peddle meat to others without subjecting themselves to the same rules that govern packers and slaughterers generally, the OPA announced today.

OPA pointed out that both large and small slaughterers are restricted in the amount of meat they may deliver in the current quarter. For example, the small slaughterers may deliver no more than the amount they delivered during the corresponding quarter of 1941, while the large packers can deliver only certain percentages of their last year's production.

OPA officials said a farmer, who during the corresponding quarter of last year, sold meat off his farm, can continue to sell, but cannot sell any more than he sold during the same quarter last year. However, if the farmer was not in the retail meat business last year at this time, he cannot enter it now under OPA regulations.

NAZIS MOVE ON BIG AIR BASE NEAR TOULON

Arrest All Officers of French Fleet After Scuttling; Vichy Leaders Ousted.

er news of the scuttling of the Toulon fleet, believed that as the result of the German attack, powerful French naval units neutralized at Alexandria, Egypt, and Gibraltar and based on Algeria, Morocco and Martinique might join the Allied naval forces for active duty.

British warships searched the Mediterranean in hope that they might pick up and escort to safety any French ships which escaped during the suicide of the main fleet at Toulon.

Men of the Fighting French fleet already fighting with the Allies paraded in the French admiralty courtyard here today and all Fighting Frenchmen observed a minute of silence in honor of the Toulon dead. Flags at the French admiralty and Gen. Charles De Gaulle's headquarters were at half staff.

A Vichy Havas dispatch reported Toulon quiet this morning, with street cars running, after a night in which explosions shook houses and damaged many of them as ammunition exploded in dumps and explosions detonated in scuttled ships. A pall of smoke hung over the city so thick, Havas said, there it was in semi-darkness.

Reports reached neutral Switzerland and Spain that the men of the Toulon fleet put up a desperate and gallant six hour fight to keep the Germans off their ships, and that they mowed down with their machine guns all German and Italian troops who approached.

Laborde hastily summoned a group of trusted young officers to pass the word along to "carry out plan B"—which was for every commander to try to get away with his own ship and if he failed to blow it up.

Some vessels tried to get up steam but were attacked by German planes, the Spanish advices said.

The main batteries of the battleships were exploded. Madrid reported, with the result that it was believed most of the men aboard were killed.

Gen. De Gaulle, leader of the Fighting French, broadcasting here, said:

"Our fleet has been scuttled so that the nation might at least be spared the supreme shame of seeing his ships become ships of the enemy. Though this tragedy has been added to so many tragedies, France stands united—yes, united—in her determination to wipe out all the atrocious consequences of disaster and betrayal. On to victory! There is no other road and there never was."

At Algiers, Darlan said:

"It was easy to foresee that the granting of free zone status to Toulon was only a German trap to get French vessels under the control of German guns.

"On Nov. 11 I invited the fleet to leave Toulon. By not doing so its officers thought they would save their ships. They lost them and caused the deaths of many officers, soldiers and sailors. . . .

"French Africa is the only place in the world where our flag flies freely, where the army carried its arms, where the fleet has its flags hoisted and where the air force can freely use its wings. We are the sole hope of France and we must show ourselves worthy of her."

It was believed here that the scuttling of the fleet, if confirmed officially, would strengthen Darlan's position and do much to appease his critics. He had promised the Allies that the fleet would not aid the Axis.

Stockholm heard reports that Pierre Laval had taken advantage of France's new ordeal to increase his own power.

According to these reports he succeeded in getting Marshal Henri Phillippe Petain to authorize him to alter the Vichy constitution as he chose without consulting Petain.

He had previously got Petain to sign a decree dissolving the French armed forces, as the Germans demanded.

Report Street Riots In Alsace-Lorraine

TALKS SUNDAY

Churchill Expected To Discuss African War In Broadcast.

LONDON—(AP)—Prime Minister Churchill will make a world-wide broadcast tomorrow on the eve of his 68th birthday.

The broadcast is scheduled for 9 p. m. (4 p. m. Eastern War Time). He probably will touch on Allied operations in North Africa, the defeat of the Nazi Africa Corps in Egypt and Libya, Russian successes, and the scuttling of the main French fleet at Toulon.

GEAR UP FOR BUYING RUSH

Gas Stations to Curb Service In Anticipation of Heavy Gas Purchases.

Gasoline dealers are urged to do the same, obtaining gummed sheets on which to keep the various gas ration coupons, each book's coupons to be held on its own particular sheet.

Retailers have been asked to remove coupon No. 27 from the sugar book whenever any coffee buyer tomorrow or Monday admits having on hand more than their legal quota of one pound per adult person—a person 15 years old or over.

Java swaggers in Mansfield, as elsewhere throughout the nation, can resume coffee buying as soon as their grocer opens after midnight — providing the stock on hand is not disqualifying for purchase. If it is, you just swallow the lump in your throat and go home to drink up what you already have.

But the pound you get tomorrow has to last you until Jan. 3 when another coupon becomes of age. President Roosevelt and others have suggested "seconds" on the grounds — a novel little stunt copied from the boys who live in the jungles down by the tracks.

The jungle bums themselves will have to coin a new slogan now, for the "Hey, buddy, how's for a cuppa coffee" is definitely out for the duration and could easily result in open rioting.

which passes on all supply bills, echoed Boren's sentiments. Henderson was termed "a menace to the war effort" by Representative Taber of New York, ranking Republican on the committee, who suggested OPA's funds should be drastically curtailed.

Some members went so far as to suggest that OPA be abolished entirely and its functions turned over to James Byrnes, economic stabilization director.

From influential Republicans came predictions that one of the first things the strengthened minority would demand when the new congress convenes would be a complete investigation of OPA.

The congressional protests, voiced in the house late yesterday, were spearheaded by a group of Democrats, who applauded the suggestion of Representative Fox that congress "should put the bureaucrats on record now" that "their regime is going to end."

The OPA chief was accused by Representative Herbert (D-La) of envisioning "the day when democracy will make way for a complete bureaucracy and regimentation of the American people."

Henderson's opponents failed to be mollified by his statement before a senate war committee that gasoline rationing would be administered on a "common sense" basis and that farmers and other essential drivers would be given ample allotments.

farm machinery. He complimented city and county governments for the leading part the county had taken in the collection of scrap and particularly cited The News-Journal for "its excellent work" in promoting the drive.

Reports from the various counties throughout the state are still incomplete, Weible said, although he indicated that Richland county stood high on the list. Hamilton county received the first pennant.

Stough's committee was present for the ceremonies as were county officials, Mansfield and Richland county school superintendents and principals and a number of invited guests including Mayor William J. Locke, Grattan Johnston, city manager of Warner Brothers' theaters, who had sponsored a scrap matinee; James M. Hill, president of the Empire Sheet and Metal company, promotion chairman in the drive, and John W. Graham, general manager of The News-Journal which presented a trophy to the city school collecting the most scrap per capita. The trophy was won by St. Peter's school upon a collection of 792 tons of scrap or 149 pounds per pupil.

James Brownscombe acted as master of ceremonies and prior to introducing the speaker pointed out the four major efforts in the drive, industrial, school, rural salvage and The News-Journal contest for the schools.

Music was furnished by three music pupils of the Smart Studios. They were Marjorie Ferguson, Eileen Schuler and Helen Sampsel who also played for the singing of "America."

After the program the audience adjourned to the courthouse yard where the flag was raised by Tony Moritz, courthouse custodian.

ALLIED COLUMN STRIKES CLOSE TO VITAL TUNIS

Airtroops, Armored Forces Join In All-Out Push To Oust Axis.

troops and are striking hard at Allied-controlled air fields, it was disclosed.

Latest official word from headquarters placed the forward elements of Gen. Anderson's army 15 miles west of Tunis, confirming the occupation of the town of Tabourba following capture by the Allies of the important rail junction of Mejez El Bab, 30 miles west southwest of the capital.

The present advance of the Allied troops is being concentrated in the northern area of Tunisia where the Germans and Italians hold their strongest foothold.

Gen. Anderson's army sloshed ahead across roads heavily covered with mud as a result of seasonal rains. Allied air forces, it was admitted are hampered by having to land on muddy fields but despite this handicap are engaging in tremendous activity.

Combined activity by Allied aircraft and armored columns was taking a heavy toll of Axis planes and airport installations.

African headquarters cited an instance where a British armored column cooperated with air squadrons to destroy an enemy airfield in the central sector of Tunisia, smashing at least 40 Stuka divebombers on the ground. American planes taking part in the action completely destroyed the airdrome installations.

The attack on the airfield came as a complete surprise to the Germans, the British armored column striking west across country far in advance of the main Allied bodies to eliminate the field as a base for enemy attacks against the marching Allied troops.

Activity in the southern Tunisia battle zone, headquarters said, currently is restricted to patrol clashes brought about by lightning thrusts against German armored columns moving along roadways.

Allies Hit Sicilian Airdrome In 2 Raids

CAIRO —(INS)— The Gherbini airdrome in Sicily has been heavily attacked by Allied air forces in two consecutive raids, the British Middle East high command revealed today.

For the second straight day the British said there was nothing to report from land forces between Agedabia and El Agheila in the Libyan desert.

Allied medium bombers blasted hangars and buildings at the Gherbini airdrome Thursday night and again last night, headquarters of Gen. Sir Harold R. L. G. Alexander announced in a communique.

Heavy bombers ranged out over the Italian Dodecanese islands off the coast of Greece, scoring hits on a jetty where ships were moored at Porto Lago bay.

Long-range fighters operating between Sicily and North Africa shot down a Junkers 88 transport plane.

Nazi Communications Begin To Crack Up

LONDON —(AP)— Adolf Hitler's interior communications lines have begun to fail "just when he needs them most," Philip Noel-Baker, parliamentary secretary to the ministry of war transport, declared today in an exhortation to transport workers in Axis territory to commit sabotage.

"Every railway car that is wrongly labelled, every tank that is punctured, every radiator that leaks, every order that is misunderstood, every bridge that collapses is a victory won for freedom," he broadcast to the workers over the BBC.

THREE MISSING

Merchant Ship Sent Down by Submarine Attack.

AN EAST COAST PORT—(AP)—Torpedoing of a merchantman in the North Atlantic with three men unaccounted for was disclosed here today with the arrival of survivors.

The ship was struck during the third day of an attack by submarines and set afire. It was later sunk by an escort vessel.

REDS TAKE CITY AND POCKET FOE

Continue Successful Attacks In Stalingrad Area, Northern Advance.

in northern Stalingrad and several important buildings which had been occupied by the Nazis were recaptured.

In the factory area of the industrial city the Germans were dislodged from 20 blockhouses.

Northwest and south of the city "our troops before Stalingrad continued their offensive in the same direction as before," the noon communique of the Soviet high command said.

The communique revealed that the Germans attempted a counter-attack against the southern wing of Marshal Semyon Timoshenko's advancing forces but the Nazi assault failed.

After subduing the German effort the Soviets smashed their way into an inhabited locality "close on the heels of the Germans," it was said.

The continued progress of both the northern and southern arms of the huge Soviet pincers indicated that Marshal Timoshenko soon may be able to close off the Nazis in the Don bend from all avenues of escape and entrap an estimated 300,000 German troops.

In the west Caucasus the Red army carried out offensive operations northeast of the Black sea naval base of Tuapse and captured an important strategic height. German and Rumanian counter-attacks were repulsed handily, the high command said.

A force of 1,000 Nazis was reported annihilated on the Leningrad front during the past few days.

For the first time in several weeks the Soviet midnight communique referred to fighting on the Karelian front with the announcement that 200 Finnish troops had been slain in the past four days.

Russian dispatches told of renewed Soviet activity on the Leningrad front where sharp thrusts into enemy positions reduced a number of strongpoints and firing posts.

But there was still no mention in Moscow communiques of the reported Russian drive west of Rzhev where Berlin said a strong Soviet offensive was driving on the rail center of Veliki Luki sector within 100 miles of the Latvian border.

Only 22 shopping days until Christmas—can you imagine that!

Drive carefully tomorrow—and be on the lookout for glass fragments on streets and highways.

It is unavoidable that soldiers make greater sacrifices than folks who stay at home—but this should be equalized as much as possible.

French Destroy Toulon Fleet

THE HEROIC SPIRIT of temporarily subjugated France flamed to new heights yesterday when loyal Frenchmen destroyed their battle fleet in Toulon harbor, rather than have it fall into the hands of the hated Nazis.

It was only by superior military force that Hitler was enabled to overrun northern France in the early days of the war, and it has been only through terroristic tactics that the Nazis have been able to maintain a semblance of order in occupied territory.

Recent movement of German troops through "unoccupied" France, in an effort to meet the North African attack, showed the scant regard in which Hitler held his armistice agreement with Vichy, and his final desperate attempt to seize the fleet at Toulon plainly disclosed intent to use all of France and its resources in any way he sees fit.

But the long discussed problem of what would finally become of the Toulon fleet had apparently been decided well in advance by the officers and crews of those ships—it was to be destruction of the battle fleet, and death for themselves, if necessary, rather than surrender to the despised Nazis.

That spirit of France, as it is given opportunity to emerge from the devastation which has been wrought by brutal invaders, will serve to further strengthen determination of Fighting Frenchmen, wherever they may be, and will also inspire freedom-loving people all over the world, giving increased assurance that the real France is still strongly aligned with the United Nations—regardless of what may be said and done by its Axis-dominated spokesmen.

Such examples of fighting courage as are being presented by the Russians and the Chinese, together with those of British, French and American land, sea and air forces in Africa and in the Far East, justify confidence in victory for the Allies—but not without a long, hard struggle, and many more sacrifices than the people of the United States have yet experienced.

Few Buyers are Cashing Bonds

A RUMOR-CHECKER reports hearing some people say that when big bond-buying drives are staged at industrial plants, workers sign up for enough to make the quota, but as soon as they get the bonds they rush out and cash them. Fortunately this is not true. Incidents such as this may have occurred, but they are few.

Secretary Morgenthau reports that by the end of September, out of $9,000,000,000 worth of bonds sold, only 1.5 per cent had been redeemed.

Cases of illness or other sudden emergency crop up in families, calling suddenly for extra cash. Some people have always had to borrow for these, and pay back painfully for a long time afterward. Now they can turn in bonds, which are like money in the bank, and pay for the illness, operation or funeral in cash. Then they begin buying bonds again. That is a legitimate use of the savings.

Other people buy bonds and stamps both. Sometimes they turn in an unfinished book of stamps on the next bond. That looks like redemption of the stamps, but is really a quicker finishing of the book with cash.

Cashing bonds for trivial reasons is bad for the war effort, and also for the person cashing them, who yields to weakness where self-control is called for.

The way to win the war is to buy bonds and keep them for ten years, if possible. That's good for the war, holds down inflation, and will benefit the buyer later.

Change In Japanese Attitude

AT LAST the Japanese are beginning to realize that they must take the United States seriously. The light-hearted confidence they formerly showed is gone, among their responsible leaders. It is interesting to have this change of sentiment revealed by no less a personage than Admiral Nomura. He was ambassador at Washington when the Pacific war started, and one of the powerful group that underestimated and betrayed the United States.

As quoted by a German news agency, he regrets that many Japanese have been prone to regard the whole situation as very simple, and to reckon on an easily won victory. "This is a war," he insists, "on which the nation's existence depends, one which can only be won by the greatest possible faith in victory. One should never rely on the enemy not coming, but should be prepared for his coming."

So the little men have discovered that Uncle Sam really packs a wallop, but they will need more than faith to win.

Drop In Football Attendance

THE ANNUAL Harvard-Yale football game generally has little bearing on the national championship, but great importance for the followers of both universities.

So great has been the desire to see this struggle, which goes back to 1875, that for an outsider to get a ticket has been all but impossible. This is true even when the game is in the Yale Bowl, which holds 80,000, twice as many as the Harvard stadium. This year the game was at Yale, but had only 21,000 spectators. Gasoline restrictions and war absences kept thousands away.

Isolation Will Be Impossible

THE AGE of aviation has brought with it the impossibility of isolation, and this makes inevitable a trend toward a truly global political structure." So says William Burden, aviation assistant to Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones.

Like it or not, Americans live in a world where they are close to many neighbors, and every year, with its improvements in transportation, brings them closer. They can no more ignore what other countries do than they could overlook a smallpox epidemic in the next street.

Oklahoma is complaining of moonshine gasoline—with probably much the same formula as was used for moonshine liquor during prohibition.

Remember Pearl Harbor? Buy a bond.

Free Trade Plan Gains Following

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—Ardent believers in the merits of high tariff protection are thoroughly scandalized by evidences of a favorable public reaction to Wendell Willkie's recommendation that the United States take the lead in an international campaign for world-wide abandonment of all trade barriers, directly following the war's end.

There used to be, a generation or two ago, quite a sizable school of Yankee economic thought friendly to the free trade principle.

It gradually simmered down, however, to a point where it appeared to be practically extinct. I suppose our country's industrial and commercial status was the important factor. It was an era during which all those American classes felt that they needed to be "protected." Agriculture, being fairly able to take care of itself anyway, was more indifferent. Still, even the farmers weren't especially hostile to our schedule of import duties.

In short, free trade talk simply dried up, almost completely. The protectionists took it to be an utterly dead issue and ceased worrying about it, so much as a single cent's worth.

This state of affairs continued until Wendell Willkie tore into the subject recently.

First Reaction.

His initial declaration didn't excite the protectionists in the least. They figured that Wendell was trying to revive discussion of a question as old and forgotten as the extent of Noah's flood damage, and hadn't the slightest inkling that he could stir up a modicum of interest in it. Instead of that, he scored appreciably!

I wouldn't go so far as to say that he's started an outright free trade movement. Yet he's getting his scheme into print and onto the radio. The protectionists are all over regarding it as pure trivol.

Wendell's fashion of expressing himself doubtless is an important consideration. He's got an argument and the capacity for putting enthusiasm into it. I imagine that some of its past proponents have been rather prosy with their presentation.

Then gain, this puncture's appropriate.

Is there ANY way by which we can head off future wars? For whatever it may be worth, Wendell submits a plan.

The whole world would be delighted to hook up with us on an interchangeable trading basis. And it might pay US as well as the rest of the family of nations. It assuredly would tickle Canada and the Latin Americas, as well as the OLD world. Maybe it would suit the Axis aggregation likewise, but, if it would ultimately help US incidentally, what of it?

Willkie's broad, mundane thesis is that what's desirable for the average individual is, collectively considered, desirable for all individuals.

That is to say:

Suppose we've got a tariff system that enables some particular industry to scoop in all possible profits from the line it specializes on. THAT industry'll make barrels of money out of its monopoly, but it'll make it at the expense of others.

Wendell's dope extends, to tell the truth, on into infinity.

Listen World!

The American Spirit

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

PRAISE THE LORD and pass the ammunition!"

The Sky Pilot claims that he didn't say it. Meaning, of course, Captain William A. Maguire, Catholic navy chaplain of Pearl Harbor fame, who is supposed to have shouted that cry when he manned a wounded gunner's post at the height of the Japanese attack. But even if he didn't fire a gun, he admits "he felt those words"—and he put that feeling into the ammunition he carried up a narrow ladder to the roaring cannon . . . and the tenderness with which he carried broken men down that same ladder.

Whether he actually fired those guns with dynamite or his own fury matters little to us who are humming that song as we bend over our own "defense guns," be they kitchen sinks, welding machines, hospital cots or mines. For they are the stuff of which the American spirit—and Freedom—is made.

Personally, I've never seen a brave ideal which didn't require a lot of fighting for—and several varieties of ammunition.

There's a queer notion that Jesus Christ was a pacifist—which affords an elegant alibi for a lot of 'fraid cats who'd be scared to spit at their own shadows. But if you'll study the history of the Nazarene, you'll find that He was bucking Dirty Work every step of the way. His gentlest fable packed the repercussion of a TNT bomb. He could blast the most deeply rooted hypocrisy with a quiet smile. And it is of record that He could also use a whip with good effect on those who desecrated the Temple.

Jesus—and I say it with all reverence—was never a panty-waist. He was a diplomat, a prophet, a psychologist but a two-fisted soldier all the time. He knew—better than anyone on earth—that justice, truth and decency are never easy or spontaneous traits. He knew that we must earn our way into the Kingdom of Heaven, and it's tough going all the way. And when the time came, He was willing to pay the price.

"PRAISE THE LORD AND PASS THE AMMUNITION!"—there's as great a song as has come out of any war. It holds the essence within it of all great war songs. There is Faith . . . but there also is the fighting flame that fuses a man with his God in moments of tremendous sacrifice.

It's all very well to praise the Lord. But it won't also willing to "pass the ammunition," as He did, you're a fadeout in the ranks of righteousness.

That's what's wrong with so many worthy citizens. They praise the Lord in their various admirable ways. They keep out of jail. They pay their taxes and contribute to the proper charities and invite the Better People to their pleasant parties. But do they ever leap out of their padded chairs and take a Positive Stand about the cruelty and indecency which beset this world? Do they ever take a chance on some Down-'n'-outer and give him a break—even if he rewards them with a load of grief, as he probably will? Do they ever kick convention in the teeth and demand a new and kinder deal for all of us? They do not!

Yet they think that God will reward them, simply because no one has ever found a body buried in their cellars!

As a matter of fact, such stuffed birds are a greater handicap to progress than the average sinner. The sinner at least has a definite aim—he's a positive character and might make good if given a fighting chance. But the negative saint is a bowl of mush—who expects a heavenly handout for nothing.

"PRAISE THE LORD AND PASS THE AMMUNITION!" That slogan is as old and as glorious as the American spirit. It lies at the basis of every noble battle, every honest prayer. It swings its proud, wild music to the chant of a marching God! And, believe me, it will land its wallop every time!

Summary of Week's Happenings

Big Bloodless Victory at Dakar Highlights Allied African Gains

—By ASSOCIATED PRESS

JUTTING in to the Atlantic like a nose on the face of the French West African "bulge" lies Dakar, the capital of Senegal, a great naval base, a fine harbor. It is a modern city, with excellent transportation, warehouses and water supply.

It also could be used as a submarine base, enabling undersea craft to intercept shipping bound through the South Atlantic around the Cape of Good Hope.

In the months past, when American shipping losses in the South Atlantic rose alarmingly, many seamen believed this was exactly the case. And as Germany and Vichy France drew closer in their collaboration scheme there was increasing apprehension not only in North America but in Brazil, a scant 2,000 miles away.

Bloodless Victory.

Last week, without a shot being fired by the 20,000 to 50,000 French soldiers there or from the guns of the huge naval force, Dakar came into the Allied camp; officially, into the hands of ex-Vichy Admiral Jean Darlan, now on the side of the American forces occupying North Africa.

It was a major development of the short African campaign and represented another brilliant feat of American diplomatic and military planning. The occupation of North Africa left Dakar cut off; the decision of Darlan to join the Allies gave Dakar's Governor-General Pierre Boisson a chance to move in gracefully.

And it saved the Allies another expeditionary force; an inevitable loss of life.

From North Africa, Lt. Gen. Dwight Eisenhower referred to the development as a "French matter." Darlan's triumphant announcement of the co-operation was followed by a plaintive appeal from Marshal Petain at Vichy for resistance by French Africans to "attack." There seemed every evidence, however, that despite the conflict between Petain and Darlan, Dakar no longer was a liability to the Allies.

The value of this vast territory could hardly be over-estimated. In its harbor is a huge fleet, comprised of the new 35,000-ton battleship Richelieu, three cruisers, three destroyers, 17 submarines and dozens of small units. The army is well-equipped and has a number of tanks and planes, although most are presumed to be outdated.

Win No. 2.

The development at Dakar was only one of the week's diplomatic eye-openers. Only a few hours before the announcement, Secretary of State Hull had disclosed an agreement with Admiral Georges Robert, French high commissioner at Martinique, over the attitude of French possessions in the Caribbean. The agreement, said Hull, would make American occupation unnecessary.

Thus were Dakar and Martinique added to the score for the Allies, along with Madagascar (occupied by the British) and the French Pacific islands, St. Pierre and Miquelon (occupied by the Fighting French). One big question mark remained—and that was the balance of the French fleet at Toulon.

At Home

For Traitors, Death.

"This is a war of people against people as well as cannon against cannon. To endanger the home front, therefore, is as treasonable as the act of spiking our guns in the face of the enemy."

So spoke Federal Judge William J. Campbell in Chicago as he condemned to death three men charged with aiding Herbert Hans Haupt, executed Nazi saboteur, and decreed 25-year prison terms and $10,000 fines for three women also on trial.

Convicted were Haupt's parents, his aunt and uncle and two friends of the family.

U. S. Counts Its Dead.

In the "rehearsal for invasion" at Dieppe last August, 7,000 Canadians, Britons and Americans braved the defenses of the German-held French coast. Half that number was killed, wounded or captured.

Last week U. S. army and navy authorities in Africa totaled up the losses for the large-scale occupation of North Africa, announced 360 killed, 500 missing and 1,050 wounded in a force of undisclosed strength (Axis estimate: 150,000 men).

The losses were low, most of them occurred in the Oran-Casablanca area, and the announcement said most of those missing probably drowned.

It was a major victory at a rock-bottom cost in manpower, but as the campaign drew toward the close of its third week, the pace slackened and the task appeared to be growing tougher.

Semper Paratus.

The women's army auxiliary corps (WAACS) beat the field in organizing, but the navy auxiliary came up with a better name (WAVES) even if it took a synthetic full title to get it.

Last week the coast guard auxiliary topped them both in the name derby, and the SPARS (from the coast guard motto—"Semper Paratus, Always Ready") made their bow on the women-in-uniform scene. Named to administer the new outfit was 43-year-old Dorothy C. Stratton, on leave as dean of women at Purdue university. She will rank as lieutenant commander.

Finest Medal.

U. S. marine corps Captain Richard E. Fleming died in the Battle of Midway, plunging his flaming plane into the sea after he had dived almost to the mast tops of a Jap ship to unload his bombs.

In Washington last week Hero Fleming's mother accepted in his name the Congressional Medal of Honor, first to be awarded a marine aviator in this war. Said President Roosevelt: "This is the world's finest medal. . . ."

Abroad

November Again.

In the waning days of November 1941, the Russian army gathered its battered but unbeaten forces at Rostov and delivered a smashing blow to Adolf Hitler's heretofore unstoppable thousands.

Rostov, into which the Germans had marched a week before, was evacuated, the Germans fell back and the great winter retreat was on.

Last week the Russians marked the anniversary of the fall of Rostov with another astounding performance—they were showing what they could do if the Allies provided a second front.

Besieged Stalingrad, where the bloodiest fighting of the entire war has taken place, was being relieved, and the Russians were rolling with an offensive that threatened the Germans with an unprecedented loss in men killed and captured.

By midweek, the Russians had killed and captured more than 75,000 Germans, sought to throw a loop around 300,000 more wedged between severed railroad lines in the Stalingrad area.

3'r Down, 97 to Go.

Hilly, jungle-matted Guadalcanal is a peanut-shaped island roughly 100 miles long and 20 miles wide. Last week, at the "waist" of the island American troops held a coastal area approximately 16 miles in width and four miles in depth.

Compared with the size of the island, they dominated only about three per cent, but they still held Henderson airfield after four months of the war's bitterest fighting.

And for the first time in weeks, navy officials were inclined to optimism in this long Pacific war of attrition with the Japanese. From Washington came these three disclosures: (1) The enemy "very likely" has been unable to get reinforcements ashore since the naval battle of mid-November when a huge invasion-bent Japanese naval force was smashed; (2) Despite heavy resistance, American troops are extending their advances west of the airport; (3) Prospects of another sea-borne Japanese invasion force have, for the present, been reduced.

Bundles for Nippon.

While temporary quiet settled on the South Pacific, the Japs were on the receiving end of three other fierce operations in the Asiatic scene.

In New Guinea, the steamroller offensive started by Australians and Americans against Jap-held ports on the northern coast continued, with Buna and Gona nearing the mop-up stage and only Lae and Salamaua standing between the Nipponese and virtual expulsion from the island, strategic supply base for Pacific operations.

Falling Star.

The political star of Sir Stafford Cripps was rising rapidly last spring when England gathered its power for the summer war drive.

As a member of the war cabinet, Cripps had helped chart the Empire's course. He had carried out a successful mission to Russia. He was named to go to India to untangle the confused political problems there and to bring India into the war effort.

Cripps returned from India defeated in his purpose. In the months that followed, Britons heard rumors of disagreements between Cripps and Winston Churchill, of Cripps' unhappiness in his position as leader of the house of commons.

At Winston Churchill's request last week, Sir Stafford Cripps stepped out of the war cabinet, out of the leadership of the house, out of the job as Lord Privy Seal. He became, instead, minister of aircraft production—a drop in the war effort's scale of importance.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—One of Broadway's soundest new stage-hits, "The Damask Cheek," is pretty much a personal triumph for Flora Robson, the English actress. I can't think of anyone who could do the job she is doing as a spinster whose only love affair blossoms rather tardily in life. And rather tardily, Flora is getting the break she should have had long ago.

She looks the part, in this play about family life in 1909, wearing the floor-length dresses and huge hats of the day much as you remember that maiden aunt of yours. Flora is not what you would call a beautiful woman, which has resulted in her playing some unpleasant roles. But she has a sweet, perfectly beautiful smile which is completely transforming. When Flora smiles, in this play by John Van Druten and Lloyd Morris, you're on her side to the finish.

You may remember Flora as the incomprehensible mother in "Bahama Passage," a role so bad that film audiences laughed at her mental sufferings and applauded when she died. Flora certainly remembers it. She has refused point blank to do any neurotics of that type since.

THAT frankness has paid dividends. "The Damask Cheek" is her first comedy and she has her first sympathetic role on Broadway, which has seen her in "Ladies In Retirement" and "Anne of England." And she is, she told me, very happy because she has succeeded in breaking away from type.

Sitting in Producer Dwight Deere Wiman's office, she told me some things about herself that I thought were interesting. She is from a Scottish family, her full name being Flora McKenzie Robson (It's Rob-son, not Robe-son.) She is the sixth of seven children, the only one who was stage-struck. Her parents still live on the south coast of England, and because she can't send them much else right now, she sends them seeds from California.

"Ours is an old sea-going family," she said, "and I guess that's where I get my urge to travel. There's nothing I like better than a road tour, seeing new towns and new country."

FLORA came over originally in 1938 to do the film, "Wuthering Heights." Four months later she returned to do several films and "Ladies In Retirement," a play in which she was a murderess, and which ran 11 months on Broadway.

I made a few notes while she wasn't looking. She has light blue eyes. And she was wearing a burnt-orange turban trimmed with a fluffy bit of fur, a coat of the same color, black dress and black gloves. She didn't look like a spinster at all.

'A Little Learning'

In the Solomons they tell of a marine machine gunner who heard footsteps in the dark and sent a burst in the direction of the sound. Out of the darkness came a voice:

"Hold up your fire. We are American troops. I am bringing in my platoon."

In reply, the gunner raked the area with bullets, knocking out a Japanese patrol. To comrades, he explained:

"It was just too damned grammatical to be a marine."

CRESTLINE GIRL IS BRIDE OF CARL ISH

Reception Held at Home After Ceremony In Crestline Church on Nov. 25; Couple Will Live In Pennsylvania.

BEFORE an altar simply decorated with ferns, Miss Helen Helfrich of Crestline exchanged nuptial vows with Carl J. Ish, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lial L. Ish, 187 Buckingham street, in the Trinity Lutheran church at Crestline on Nov. 25. Rev. Charles H. Lange performed the double ring ceremony at 7:30 p. m. in the presence of invited relatives and friends.

Preceding the service a quarter-hour musical program was presented by the church organist, Miss Elsie Nungesser. Her selections included, "The Indian Love Call," "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life," "Dream Girl of Pi Kappa Alpha," "I Love You Truly" and the hymn, "Blest Be the House."

Given in marriage by her father, Charles Helfrich, the bride was attired in a street length, powder blue velvet dress which was trimmed with a yoke of white lace. Her accessories were in a fuchsia shade and she had a corsage of white roses. As the maid of honor and only attendant for her sister, Miss Ruth Helfrich wore a fuchsia velvet dress with black accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

John Culler of Akron, friend of the bridegroom, served as best man. Both mothers of the couple were dressed in teal blue and had accessories in black. They wore corsages of red roses.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, Nov. 29.

Sunday's horoscope holds promise of a continuation of happiness and pleasant and prosperous relations, if a determined effort be made to maintain happiness, good will and congenial employments. This means the decided determination not to be carried into argument, dissension or ill will by indulging in turbulant, impetuous and reckless acts and words. Benefits and extended happiness depend on exercising charms and graces of personality.

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy a profitable and pleasant year if they will preserve personal harmony, good will and pleasant attitudes in spite of possible disappointments, defeats or other forms of antagonism or opposition. Strife, impetuosity and bitterness may aggravate menacing states.

A child born on this day may have a rebellious, impetuous and willful nature which may unfit it to cope with disappointments, when amiability, steadiness and good nature might result in turning the tide.

For Monday, Nov. 30.

Monday's astrological forecast is for a day of outstanding achievements and brilliant coups, probably of such character as to merit public approval of community groups, political, secret or fraternal bodies. It is a place in the limelight of wide renown, and yet it is probable there may be some sudden visitation or collapse unless great prudence is exercised.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a year of spectacular achievement or an extraordinary adventure of such dramatic nature as to propel them into the public eye, with wide acclaim and honors. Groups, fraternities or political organizations join in the rush to support and shower pleasant rewards. Nevertheless there is sign of sudden downfall, estrangement or other frustration unless care be taken not to act with impetuosity or emotionalism.

A child born on this day should have qualities of extraordinary worth for attaining public, community and secret assistance and acclaim, a high and honored position which it may have to fight hard to maintain.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

My ruse succeeded better than it deserved, for Georges roused himself from his gloom and resumed his saga of escape.

"With two others I lived what seemed to be endless days and nights in that fishing boat," he said. "We scorched by day and froze by night. How we escaped being wrecked I have no idea, but finally we got through to England. There I found friends and thought I had found a haven.

"I had changed my appearance, but had not adopted this atrocious disguise. I was careful not to appear in public places, but someone must have recognized me and passed the word along to men who wanted to be rid of me. I was shot at twice, and there were other attempts to kill me.

"Then my friends and I decided that I must come to this country in a fool proof disguise. But as it turned out, you saw through me. I don't know who else may know."

Clever Disguise.

"I don't believe anybody does," I said. "After studying you closely that night in the cafe, I felt sure you were a young man disguised. Most folks would have put you down as an eccentric old exhibitionist, proud of his hair and beard."

"That is the effect I tried to give," he said, "and why I made myself so conspicuous on every possible occasion. I figured that was the next best thing to looking absolutely ordinary, for which I am too tall."

"And far too good-looking, Georges," I said with a chuckle.

"Thank you," he said with an embarrassed flush, and I saw that his gloom and doubt had lessened. "As I said, the next best thing was to adopt a very conspicuous role, and I am glad you think I succeeded."

Conspirators Deceived.

"You certainly did," I rejoined heartily. "But you told me in the cafe that you were in great danger. Are they on your trail over here?"

"Yes and no," he said slowly. "Representatives of the new order of things are over here, but with the help of old comrades I have been able to make them believe I too am against the throne and watching for the king to show up. "No one in the whole gang is so blood thirsty against Georges as I have seemed," Georges added. "I rail against him and plan a thousand deaths for him.

"But if their suspicions should ever be aroused, my life would not be worth a farthing."

"It is high time," I said severely, "for you to take refuge with my father. You can shed your Father Christmas make-up in the adjoining suite where my father is, take on another guise and go out of the hotel without anyone dreaming you are the same man who came to this suite."

Promise of Safety.

I did not tell him of the espionage exercised by the hotel manager, Milner. I knew first that Milner for a day or two would not be likely to be active, after the fiasco of drugging Noel and Mary and his grilling by Philip Vertizen. In the second place, my father could spirit him out of the hotel to the hideaway so that no one would be the wiser.

That sounds like an answer to prayer," he said. "You cannot know how I long to be rid of this awful disguise!"

Then, with a hopeful gleam in his eyes, he said:

"If it is as safe as you say at your father's hideaway, will it be possible for me to see Mary there, and Olina—and Noel, of course?"

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

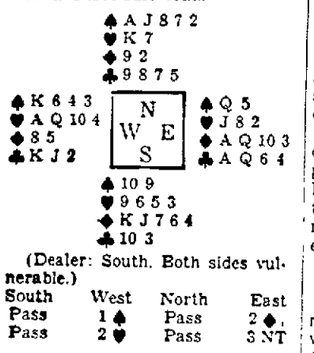
"The Authority on Authorities"

HE MUST BE STRONGER

When your own hand is extremely weak, and the opponents have bid to only a game, your partner is almost certain to have a pretty fair hand. Your best defense then is to open the suit which you think will help him to make the best use of his cards. Forget trying to make your own produce their best results. They are unimportant compared to his, especially if the contract is No Trump. You probably will be unable to regain the lead in your own best suit, so try to hit his, with a short-suit lead.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 ♠	Pass	2 ♦
Pass	2 ♥	Pass	3 NT

Disregarding two rules of sound leading, South opened his diamond 6. In the first place, it is usually bad to lead into a suit bid at your right, particularly if it is the only suit bid by that player. More important, though, South's hand was so weak that he figured never to be in the lead again after the suit got set up, as he had nothing which looked like a side entry.

East was canny. Reading that South would never have opened that suit with only four cards of it, he counted North for only two and South for five. So, wanting the lead in his own hand, to try the heart finesse, he took that trick with the 10. Promptly he finessed the heart J and lost to the K, then boldly won the return diamond with the A. Then he led the spade 5 toward the K, knowing that if South had the spade A his own diamond Q would stop its suit.

But North had the spade A as he hoped. With no diamond to return, he tried a club. East thereupon scored four tricks in that suit, three in hearts and one in spades, giving him ten all told, one over his contract.

If South makes the right lead, of the spade 10—bound to be his partner's suit—there is no way to keep the defenders from taking two tricks in spades and the two red kings, holding the declarer to exactly nine tricks.

Your Week-End Lesson.

If very sound vulnerable opponents, using the Blackwood convention, bid 1-Heart, 3-Hearts; 4-No Trumps, 5-Diamonds; 5-No Trumps, 6-Hearts; 7-Hearts, what would you then do, after your partner and right-hand opponent had passed that grand slam contract, when holding this hand?

CHAPTER XXVII

"No," he said and grinned. "As a business man. I don't want to worry you—too much. You've got to make good in this picture—now that I have a $10,000 stake in your success."

Two days later Fordyce bawled her out before everyone on the set.

"You'll never be an actress," he shouted. "D'ye want me to get Alice Delaware for the part?" He immediately regretted saying it. But Livia was enough to try the patience of a saint. Perhaps Bruce knew what was the matter.

"I guess it's a case of nerves," Bruce said, and then suggested, "It's none of my business, of course, but why don't you go a bit easier with her? I think she's just scared of the part."

"All right," Fordyce agreed.

But it made no difference whether he was harsh or kind. The spark that Livia had shown in the first weeks of production was gone. And the front office demanded that Livia be removed from the picture.

"But Charlie," Ronald Dunne protested, waving his long cigar at the screen. "That's a two million-dollar production. The girl is no good. What are you trying to do—put us into bankruptcy?"

They were in the projection room to see the "rushes" of the day. Livia's performance was terrible. Even Fordyce had to admit that now. But she had been doing fine until a few days ago. What was the matter with her?

"I guess she just couldn't take it—it was too big," Fordyce thought.

"If we get rid of her now," Dunne said, "so all right, we lose a hundred thousand dollars, but that's better than losing two million."

"Give me another week with her," Charles said. "If I don't snap her out of it then, we'll get another actress."

"Another week — that means more good money after bad. All right, another week—then we'll get Alice Delaware," said Dunne grimly.

"Okay, you can get Alice Delaware," Fordyce agreed.

He was kinder to Livia the next day. There were just a few close-ups before lunch. He came into her dressing-room.

"I wish you'd tell me what's the matter," he said gently.

"Nothing's the matter," she said and burst into tears. He waited in silence. "I guess I'm overtired," she said finally.

"Would you like to go home?"

"But the picture—"

"This isn't doing the picture much good, Livia. If you're overtired, then it's better to rest. I can shoot around you today and tomorrow. Go home now and don't think of the picture at all. Then we'll start again all fresh, hey?"

She smiled gratefully through her tears.

But instead of going home Livia drove to Al Jonas' office. She had a plan for her father. Someone on the set had mentioned a sanitarium in Santa Barbara with a reputation for curing the worst drunkards.

Jonas grinned while she expounded her plan.

"It's for him to decide," he said.

"All right. Where is he? I'd like to put it up to him," Livia said.

"He's pretty drunk now," Jonas warned her. "But if you really want to see him, okay. I'll take you to him myself."

They drove to Terry's apartment. There were two other men with them. They were silent until Livia put her hand on the leather flap at the back of the driver's seat.

"Be careful," said the man next to her sharply. Jonas grinned and lifted up the flap revealing a small arsenal of guns. Livia shrank back with a cry.

"Nothing to get nervous about," Jonas assured her. "You're safe—as long as you play ball."

Livia decided to tell Bruce the entire story. She was frightened. These men were killers as well as blackmailers. Bruce would probably never want to see her again, but the anticipation of confession already lifted some of the fear in her heart.

Terry opened the door.

"I'm having trouble with him," he said to Jonas. Then he saw Livia. He drew back into the shadow of his apartment. Jonas beckoned Livia to follow.

Her father was sitting in an armchair, holding his head between his hands. She thought he was drunk, but the grey, worn face he turned to her was almost sober.

"What are you doing here?" he said and came toward her. She stepped back a little. If Dixon saw the aversion on her face, he ignored it.

"What d'ye mean by bringing her here?" he demanded angrily.

"I wanted to come," Livia interposed.

"Yeah," said Jonas, "She has a scheme to reform you. Listen. It might do you some good."

"Is there anything left in that bottle?" Dixon asked Terry.

"Father, please," Livia supplicated, "hear what I have to say first—please." He looked away and muttered something, but did not ask for the drink again.

"Let's all sit down and be cozy," Al boomed.

Dixon went to the window and tapped nervously on the blind. He wished Livia would go. He was sure there was something left in the bottle. Forgetfulness—that's all he wanted. He'd do anything they wanted of him—except killing, of course—unless that was the only way to get the Scotch. What had they been talking about just before Livia came in? His mind was so confused these days.

"Wouldn't you like to be a director again, making good pictures?" Livia said to him softly.

"Sure. Who wouldn't?" he replied. "Have you a job for me?"

"No, but if you got into condition, I—" Dixon laughed.

"I'm afraid that would take too long, my dear."

"I know of a place in Santa Barbara," Livia began eagerly. Dixon wheeled around savagely.

"Leave me alone, d'ye hear?" Then his shoulders slumped. "It's no use, Livia. I've tried all that; it's no use and I wouldn't do it even if I could."

"Sure you will," said Jonas. He looked significantly at Terry, who stared back, then nodded his head with understanding.

"Sure you will," he said and whispered something into Dixon's ear.

"I'll try the sanitarium," he said. Livia looked at him with suspicion and disbelief. "Really I will. How's the picture coming?" Dixon asked with an obviously painful attempt to change the conversation.

"All right, I guess," Livia said slowly. "Why do you live here with Terry?" Dixon was silent. One of the men with Jonas made a move toward Livia, but Jonas shook his head.

"For God's sake, give me a drink, someone." Dixon's voice trembled. Terry looked at Jonas.

"Sure, give him a drink—it's okay," he said to Livia. "You have to wean them gently—and the sanitarium will take care of everything." Dixon felt better after swallowing the Scotch.

"I'll start the cure on Monday," he promised genially. It was now Thursday. And with this Livia had to be content.

She felt better and slept well for the first time in a week. Before going to sleep she called Bruce.

"Charles told me you're not feeling well?" he said.

"What are you doing for lunch tomorrow?" she asked. "I was overdoing it—I'll be all right soon."

"Well, you certainly sound more cheerful—"

"I am. Let's lunch here."

"Swell."

"I'm in a sort of jam—I want to tell you about it."

"That's what Charles thought. He said you must be in some jam, and I said, 'Oh, no, if she were she'd tell me about it'."

"You were both right. One o'clock tomorrow?"

"Okay."

The Filipino butler brought her breakfast on a silver tray. Livia read the papers, laughed at an erroneous item in a movie column that she was a distant relative of the author of "Honoria Lewis"—"which," said the columnist, "is one of those coincidences in which Hollywood abounds."

"It certainly does," said Livia. She lay in the tub a long while, thinking of her father and the sanitarium. If he were cured, he might get a job directing again—he might become a father a girl could be proud of instead of being so horribly ashamed.

"I'm a snob," she told herself. But Jonas was right. Her relationship with the drunken derelict if publicized would destroy the bud of her blossoming career beyond redemption. Bruce would advise her.

He arrived at 1:45 and they went into the dining room.

"Now, what is it?" Bruce said.

"We'll eat first. I don't want to spoil your digestion," Livia smiled at him. She wore a green silk house-coat emphasizing the soft contours of her figure.

"What are you trying to do—break me down?" Bruce asked, "How am I going to rescue a damsel in distress—that's you—or rather your double—from the sinking ship this afternoon with you looking like Cleopatra?" and he chanted softly, "Other women cloy the appetites they feed, but she makes hungry where most she satisfies."

"If you're talking about food—you'd better eat up," Livia warned.

On their way from the hall to the living room Livia idly picked up the early afternoon paper Bruce had brought with him. A headline in black letters arrested her—"Earl Dixon, Famous Film Director, Charged With Murder!" The words roared in Livia's ears.

"What's the matter?" Bruce caught her as she swayed. He followed her eyes, still staring blankly at the headline, and he took the newspaper from her, gently supporting her to a chair.
